Nixon: 'Legend In His Lifetime'

By SAM FOGG

WASHINGTON (UPI) —J. Edgar Hoover who built the FBI into one of the world's most renowned crime-fighting organizations died today in his sleep at age 77.

No cause of death was given immediately by acting Att. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst who announced that the legendary director of the FBI for 48 years was found dead by his maid at 8:30 a.m. EDT.

President Nixon ordered the nation's flags flown at half staff and eulogized Hoover as "a legend in his own lifetime."

There was no immediate indication of a successor to Hoover who almost singlehandedly dominated the FBI since its inception.

J.EDGAR HOOVER
Funeral pending

Because of his personal prestige, Hoover had remained in his post beyond the mandatory retirement age of 70 at the personal decision of Nixon and his predecessor, Lyndon B. Johnson, despite mounting criticism that surrounded the agency.

Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White, a former deputy attorney general, has figured in past speculation as a possible successor. More recently John Ingersoll, director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, has been mentioned, along with Myles Ambrose, former customs commissioner who was selected by Nixon as a special assistant and assistant attorney general in charge of narcotics enforcement.

From within the FBI, Mark Felt was recently promoted to a newly created No. 3 position in the bureau but he is little known outside the bureau.

But whoever takes his place will not wield the immense personal authority Hoover exercised over the agency, in Congress, in government and on every President since Calvin Coolidge.

Nixon personally appeared in the White House press room to pay his tribute to Hoover as "one of my closest personal friends and advisers."

The President took note of the controversies that Hoover engendered by saying: "In times of controversy, Mr. Hoover was never a man to run from a fight. His magnificent contribution to making this a great and good nation will be remembered by the American people long after the petty carpings of his detractors are forgotten."

As recently as Monday, Hoover was accused at a House hearing by columnist Jack Anderson of compiling intimate dossiers on the sex life of Hollywood stars and other noted people for the "bedtime reading" of former President Johnson.

An FBI spokesman reported that Hoover was at his desk Monday and appeared in good health. He had no history of recent illness and had shown no inclination to retire.

FBI spokesman Tom Bishop said that Hoover left his office about 5 p.m. EDT Monday and notified the bureau upon reaching his bachelor home in northwest Washington.

According to Bishop, the director spent a typical day at work Monday, breaking his desk duties only for lunch at the Mayflower Hotel as was his daily custom.

Associate Director Clyde Tolson, 72, and a lifelong friend of Hoover's, will serve as acting FBI director until Nixon names a successor.

As recently as December, Hoover told an interviewer his health was excellent and he would not consider bowing out "as long as I can be of service and to my country and have the health, vigor and enthusiasm to perform my responsibilities in the manner my superiors and the public have a right to expect."

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Hoover was born Jan. 1, 1895 in Washington and graduated from George Washington University with a law degree. He joined the Justice Department July 26, 1917, at age 22 and soon was working in the enemy alien registration section with one of his first major tasks being a study of subversive activities.

On May 10, 1924, he was called into the office of then Atty. Gen. Harlan Fiske Stone and offered the challenge of shaking up the Justice Department's Bureau of Investigation which was under fire on charges of corruption.

Bishop said Hoover had dinner at the home of his second-in-command, Clyde Tolson, at the latter's home. He left for his own home about 11 p.m. EDT and was found dead beside his bed by the maid, Annie Fields, when she arrived this morning to prepare breakfast.

Bridge Painters Bitter Over 'Safety Violations'

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Bitter accusations of safety violations were leveled today against Golden Gate Bridge officers by the painters of the span.

Only one of the 35 painters was missing from their hour-long meeting with union and bridge officers — a fellow worker who fell to his death from a scaffold on April 20.

His death triggered an assertion Friday by a director of the bridge district that the death might have been prevented if painters had been issued canvas gloves instead of cheaper rubber gloves, but this was only one of more than a dozen complaints made by the painters themselves today.

More than half the men joined the vocal protest, many of them arguing that safety improvements promised after a painter was killed in 1967 never were made.

Last month's fall killed Andy Leroy Caton, 30, of Petaluma, father of four young children. He had worked five years on the job — which at $1,420 a month reportedly is the world's highest painters wage.

With health benefits, journeymen painters on the bridge make $18,336 a year.

The painters demanded portable catwalks, ladders that fit the outside of the railing, more say over safety conditions, safety lines that can be used at all times, stronger railings on scaffolds, better gloves, better goggles, more radios so help can be called faster when a man is injured, and a safety inspector "who isn't afraid of management."

Much of the criticism was aimed at paint superintendent Hale D. Sharrett and Buck Hayman, rigging and safety inspector. Sharrett hassles men who complain about safety and Hayman never inspects many work areas, they said.

Neither Hayman nor a state safety inspector was at the meeting.

The bitterest denunciations came from Leo C. Tubbs of San Mateo County, who was nearest Caton when he fell. District officials reported on the day after Caton's death that Tubbs said he did not see Caton fall, but Tubbs told the Independent-Journal last night that he had seen the fall.

"I'm out to defend a man who died," he told the I-J. Caton had his safety line unhooked because he had to climb under a pipe, Tubbs said, and slipped and fell backward under the railing while walking on the scaffold.

Tubbs and other painters today said the scaffold platforms were coated with rubber that "was like walking on grease." A painter on the bridge for 10 years, he said that Caton was "one of the safest men to work with."

Tubbs said that Superintendent Sharrett had bought leather gloves which give a better grip than rubber, but that Sharrett had issued them only to the five leadmen.

Sharrett, replying to the assertion that the rubber gloves issued painters were too slick to

Younger Hits Delay In Trials

BURLINGAME (UPI) — Citing the Angela Davis case as an example of excessive delay, Attorney General Evelle J. Younger has called for enactment of proposed legislation requiring defendants to package all their pretrial motions into a single hearing.

Attorneys can rationalize long delays, Younger told a Law Day luncheon sponsored by the San Mateo County Bar Association, "but the guy on the street believes the legal system isn't working too well."

"Delay is the ally of the defendant," he said. "Memories fade, evidence grows stale and witnesses die or move away. Prosecutions cannot survive delays of more than a year."

Younger cited the long pretrial proceedings in Miss Davis' murder and kidnap trial, now under way in San Jose, as an example of excessive court delay. He noted 25 pretrial motions were made in her case.

"They were properly made," he added. "I'm not criticizing her attorneys. They've done a very professional job. The problem is in the system."

The Republican attorney general said his office had submitted legislation requiring criminal defendants to package all of their pretrial motions into a single hearing.

Younger said such deficiencies in the system were one of the two major problems creating a crisis in administering justice. The other, he said, was unqualified attorneys.

Trials once were a search for truth, he said, but now the emphasis is on procedural rules.

He attacked the defense lawyers in the Charles Manson murder trial, which was prosecuted while he was Los Angeles County district attorney.

"One of the lawyers had never been in the courtroom before, and a first degree murder case is no place to start a practice," Younger said. "Another Manson trial attorney was not qualified the first day he entered a courtroom 15 years ago, and has deteriorated. So a two-week trial took 10 months."

Larkspur Rules Against Little King Developers

By LARRY MOWELL

After refereeing a dramatic clash of free enterprise and ecology, the Larkspur City Council for the first time in recent years ruled against a major developer last night.

It was a classic example of the mounting confrontation between the public interest and private rights taking place throughout Marin and in other communities everywhere.

The young and the very old, the articulate and the tongue-tied, the expert and the layman turned out to try to sway the council against the application of the Tiscornia interests to shave the top off Little King Mountain.

And attorney Wallace S. Myers, speaking for Alice B. Vincilione and her husband, Paul, who run the large estate, raged, "If you want it just to look at, buy it, but don't tell us we can't use it." He said the estate will sell 222 acres of its 310 acre holding for $3,125,000.

But after all the rhetoric of opponents last night and of Tiscornia representatives April 18, the 3-2 decision boiled down not to how Mayor William G. Fleckles would vote, but to how he could vote on the denial motion by freshman councilman Robert H. Lee. Lee had listed nine reasons for denial.

Agonizing, Fleckles first wanted to vote against allowing the huge estate to cut out 360,000 cubic yards of fill for the low land across Magnolia Avenue, but only on condition the permit be immediately reconsidered with stringent conditions.

"I think the motion forces you to vote it up or down," Peter B. Brekhus, assistant city attorney said.

Then Fleckles wondered if he could vote no and entertain a motion to consider the project with the conditions. Again the answer was no. "I think if this motion fails to carry, the planning commission is reversed," Brekhus said.

In that case, Fleckles said, "I am satisfied that in its present state the application does in fact violate the list that Bob stated. I would have to vote in favor of his motion."

(Today, according to City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst, Brekhus said he erred in saying the council could not attach conditions if it turned down Lee's motion. Whether to reconsider the decision, which seemed to pivot on that opinion, will be decided by the council at a meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow.)

The more than 100 persons in the multipurpose room of Henry C. Hall School erupted in applause and many gave the council a standing ovation.

It was the first time in the memory of City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst that the city council has voted against a major de-

Sausalito Police Case Jury Is Hung

Intense publicity about the grand jury investigation into the Sausalito Police Department was responsible for a hung jury and subsequent dismissal today of felony charges against a Sausalito man, according to a deputy district attorney.

Raymond E. Gilbert said Greg Landers, a persistent critic of the Sausalito Police, would have been convicted with "no problem at all" of possessing dangerous drugs and marijuana if not for the publicity about alleged misconduct by the department which made the arrest.

As it was, Landers was found guilty of a misdemeanor charge of being under the influence of drugs, but the jury locked 9-3 on the marijuana charge and 10-2 on the other felony. Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating then dismissed the charges.

Gilbert said jurors told him one woman was prejudiced against the police department and Judge Keating said her behavior may have been "irregular," but he refused to order a new trial.

Stephen Koolpe, attorney for Landers, said, "What the officers said happened just absolutely wasn't true."

Police said Landers was seen staggering outside a bar on Bridgeway on Sept. 30, 1970, and he was arrrested, searched, placed in a patrol car and taken to the police station.

In a holding cell there, police said, he dropped a pill and a search of the back seat of the patrol car produced a marijuana pipe and drugs.

Koolpe said that if Landers had had the pipe in his possession it would have been found in the original search on the street. "He also questioned how a man police said was incoherent could hide the items behind the seat in the short ride to the police station.

The case had been delayed because Landers was in Spain, but he returned last month and turned himself in to face charges. Sentencing on the misdemeanor was set for June 5.

Trial Ordered For Skyjacker

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Stanford graduate Stanley H. Speck, 31, of San Francisco, was declared mentally competent today to stand trial on a charge of hijacking a Pacific Southwest Airlines jetliner April 9.

"'Speck understands quite well the proceedings against him,'" U.S. District Court Judge Howard B. Turrentine read from a psychiatrist's report, "and the court will so find."

After the ruling, a plea of innocent was entered for Speck by his attorney, Edward A. Infante of Federal Defenders, and an omnibus hearing was set for May 11.

N. Viets Within 20 Miles Of Hue

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese soldiers and "many, many tanks" attacked the anchor point of the new South Vietnamese defense line 20 miles north of Hue today and took partial control of the base.

A military spokesman said the 2,000 American troops at Phu Bai just south of Hue were ordered on "yellow alert," which means an attack could be imminent. However, the chief U.S. adviser in the northern provinces said earlier a full-scale attack on Hue was not expected for a week.

In Saigon, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the American commander in Indochina, met with south Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, to discuss the current military situation. Thieu later summoned Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, the government commander in the north, to Saigon for an urgent conference.

U.S. pilots flying between Hue and Quang Tri said there were "hundreds and hundreds of dead soldiers" along a 20-mile stretch of the highway south of Quang Tri.

Artillery base Nancy, the key in the new South Vietnamese defense line, was attacked late in the day and by sunset field reports said control of the outpost was in doubt. Field reports said South Vietnamese held part of the base and North Vietnamese held the other part.

"There are many, many tanks at My Chanh heading for Nancy," one officer said. My Chanh is within small arms fire distance of Nancy, 12 miles south of the fallen province capital of Quang Tri city.

The threat to Binh Dinh province on the central coast increased and military sources

BLUE SIGNS $63,000 CONTRACT

BOSTON (UPI) — Vida Blue brought one of sports' most stubborn and bizarre salary disputes to a peaceful end today by signing a contract with the Oakland Athletics that was mediated and virtually dictated by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

The signing took place in the American League's offices here with Joe Cronin, president of the circuit, and Kuhn in attendance.

The 23-year-old Blue, the league's Most Valuable Player and Pitcher of the Year in 1971, and Oakland clubowner Charles O. Finley revealed yesterday they had reached agreement. Blue is to be paid $63,000 for one year, $48,500 more than the $14,500 he received last season.

Arrest Is Made In Yablonski Murders

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The FBI said Tuesday it arrested Albert Edward Pass, 51, a United Mine Workers union official from Middlesboro, Ky., in connection with the murders of UMW leader Joseph Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

An FBI spokesman said Pass was arrested without incident.

Big Redevelopment Area Selected

By BRUCE MARTIN

A sweeping section of San Rafael was designated a redevelopment area last night by the city council — an area extending roughly from Fourth and H streets in the west to Point San Pedro Road in the north and East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in the south. (Other San Rafael City Council stories, page 9.)

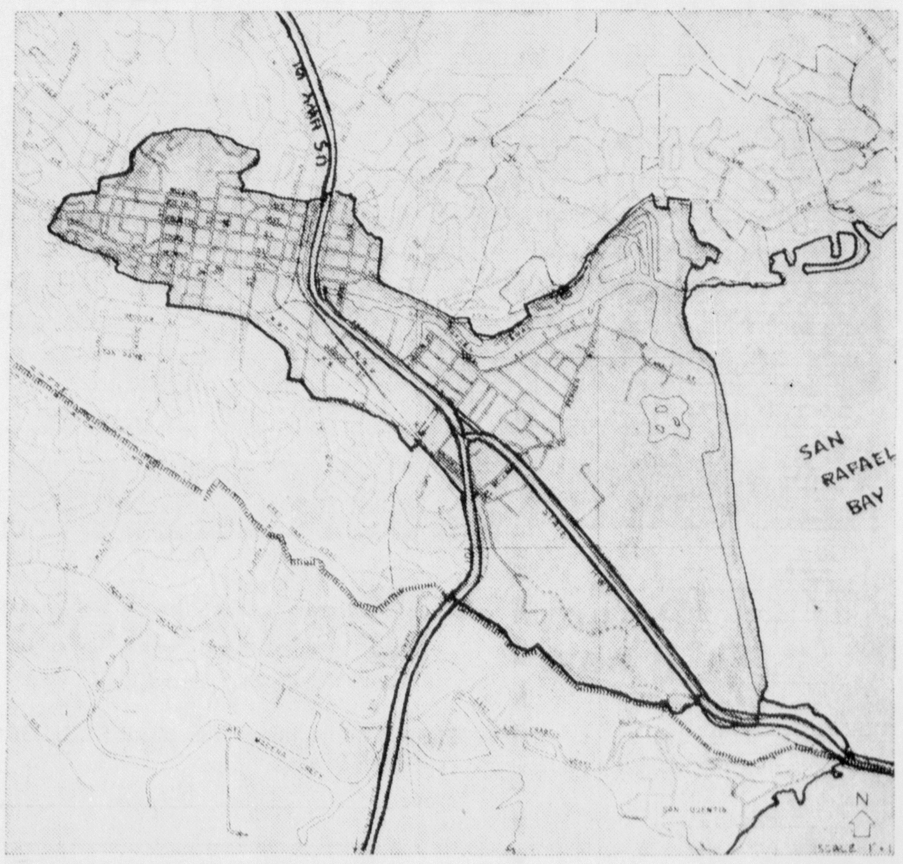
Redevelopment counsel Steven H. Goldfarb of the Oakland law firm of Goldfarb and Owens — hired last month by the city — presented the map which was accepted without comment by the council.

The resolution unanimously passed by the council in accepting the map stated that the council, which also acts as the city's redevelopment agency, will "study (the area) to determine whether a redevelopment project or projects" are feasiblem

The planning commission was directed by the resolution to make preliminary studies as required by the state Community Redevelopment Law, by which the city agency is guided.

Before accepting the map, the council adopted an ordinance declaring the need for a redevelopment agency.

Once a redevelopment plan is formulated, the county assessor can create a tax district within area boundaries. And once such a tax area is set up, revenues from any increase in assessment would go to the agency to pay for improvements.



REDEVELOPMENT AREA — San Rafael city councilmen have designated the shaded area in the heart of city and much of its waterfront for redevelopment. Improvements would be paid for by allocation of tax revenues resulting from those improvements.

(Independent-Journal sketch)

The area runs in a southerly direction from Fourth and H along Woodland to Highway 101, then out to East Sir Francis Drake. The area then follows the San Rafael Bay shoreline north past East Canal Street to Point San Pedro Road, and comes west into the downtown area at Third Street, picking up at Mission Avenue and moving to H Street.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Attacks Controls

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — West Coast longshoremen's leader Harry Bridges called for a nationwide general strike against President Nixon's wage controls because they are "politically rigged."

Bridges promised to fight the Pay Board and "destroy its effectiveness by any means possible" including general strikes and political demonstrations.

The Pay Board, in an action that caused four of its union members to resign, ordered a slash in wage increases won by the longshoremen after a 135-day strike.

Bridges said his union is undertaking "a joint effort with the AFL-CIO and other unions to further expose the Pay Board and its decisions as being politically rigged in every way."

Images Saved

CHICAGO (UPI) — A federal judge has acted to save the good reputation of Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Goofy, Dumbo and the Big Bad Wolf.

U.S. District Court Judge William Bauer yesterday issued permanent injunctions preventing novelty stores from selling posters, T-shirts, pillows and other novelties which "destroy the world wide image of innocent delightfulness of Walt Disney cartoon characters."

The court declared the merchandise manufactured or sold by five defendants showed the copyrighted Disney characters in out-of-character roles — "depicting them in degrading, lewd, lascivious, drug-addictive and other offensive manners."

To Visit Japan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House said today Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser, would visit Japan shortly.

Issues Avoided

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va., (UPI) — Two of the administration's most controversial issues — bombing and busing — were left out of a resolution before the Republican Governors Conference today expressing support for President Nixon's programs and policies.

The resolution, drafted by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, was expected to be unanimously approved by the 17 GOP governors attending the two-day affair.

"Deliberately left out," according to one staff member of the conference, was any specific mention of support for the President's bombing policies in Vietnam and his announced opposition to the forced busing of school children solely to bring about racial balance.

Controls Lifted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wage and price controls on 5 million small businesses and 19 million of their workers have been lifted by the government's Cost of Living Council.

The council took the action yesterday in an effort to free manpower to watch over the nation's largest companies and unions.

The new regulation exempts from price and wage controls companies and local government units with 60 or fewer employes.

Not included under the exemption are health service or construction industry firms with 60 or fewer workers.

Tax Suggestion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government already has made a compromise with single taxpayers by adjusting income tax laws at the expense of married couples. Further changes should be aimed at helping married people, according to an administration spokesman.

Edwin S. Cohen, assistant Treasury secretary for tax policy, suggested, but did not recommend, that Congress may be asked to lower the standard deduction for single persons but increase it for married couples.

"There can be no question that the present system does not provide perfect results in every instance, but the inequities generally arise from atypical living conditions," Cohen told a House Ways and Means Committee hearing yesterday.

Says Apology Due

TOKYO (UPI) — Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda, one of the principal contenders to succeed Prime Minister Eisaku Sato, said today a visit to China by Japan's prime minister should be the first step in normalizing relations between Japan and China.

"As the first step toward diplomatic normalization, our nation's prime minister should go to Peking and apologize to the Chinese people for what we had done to them during the war," the Kyodo News Agency, quoted Fukuda as saying.

New Trial Refused

JACKSON, Tenn. (UPI) — The Tennessee Supreme Court refused yesterday to consider the question of a new trial for James Earl Ray, the convicted assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Without comment, the state's highest court refused to review a decision issued in February by the State Court of Criminal Appeals. The appellate court had upheld a previous ruling by a Memphis judge denying a new trial for Ray.

Stone Troops

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Protestant youths stoned Army troops and set a store ablaze last night but older members of the extremist Protestant Vanguard movement intervened to prevent a sixth consecutive night of all-out rioting.

Earlier yesterday, the first multiple bombing in Northern Ireland's three years of secular violence killed one worker and injured 15 others, six of them seriously, in a chain of eight blasts at a synthetic fibers factory in Carrickfergus, an all-Protestant town eight miles north of Belfast.

Pot Petition Names Filed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Backers ok the California Marijuana Initiative filed Monday 319,000 of the 326,504 voter signatures needed to get the measure rescinding marijuana penalties on the November ballot.

The filing was the first of two prescribed by law and will be followed in about seven weeks with another filing.

Robert Ashford, state coordinator of the initiative drive, said the target was 600,000 signatures to allow an invalidity rate of 45 per cent and still qualify for the ballot.

If approved by the electorate, the initiative would end criminal penalties for personal possession, use and growth of marijuana by those over 18.

'COOPER' INTERVIEW PUBLISHED

This is the front page of the bi-weekly newspaper, The Seattle Flag, with a story in its May 10 edition of what the paper said was a transcript of a taped interview with hijacker "D. B. Cooper." The transcript quoted "Cooper" as saying it took him a year and six months to plan the hijacking-extortion; that he was a former Boeing employe who had worked on the 727 project; an experienced skydiver; unmarried, and without friends. Special FBI Agent J. Earl Milnes, Seattle, said of the report, "we have absolutely no comment."

Federal Judge Nullifies Union Leader's Election

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Citing a "tide of evidence too strong to resist," a federal judge has nullified the 1969 reelection of W. A. "Tony" Boyle as United Mine Workers president.

U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant made the ruling Monday. He said the union showed "little regard" for a requirement that the voting be held by secret ballot.

Bryant also found that Boyle forces conducted campaigning in polling areas, interfered with observers for defeated candidate Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, and used the union's newspaper to push the Boyle candidacy.

To accept the union's defense against charges brought by the U.S. Labor Department, Bryant said, "the court would be forced to swim upstream against the tide of evidence too strong to resist."

Yablonski, his wife and daughter were murdered in their Clarksville, Pa., home less than a month after the December, 1969, election.

G.M., Ford Accused Of Price Fixing

DETROIT (UPI)—A federal grand jury indicted General Motors and Ford Monday on charges of conspiring to fix prices in the automobile fleet sales market in an attempt to eliminate Chrysler Corp. as a major competitor.

The two-count indictment was returned in U.S. District Court. The government also filed a civil suit against GM and Ford, the nation's two largest auto manufacturers.

Both companies denied the charges and said they would seek swift vindication in the courts.

"The accusations in the indictment are not true and we shall defend ourselves vigorously," said Wright Tisdale, vice president and general counsel for Ford.

"We will seek an immediate trial on the merits," a General Motors spokesman said. "We are confident General Motors will be vindicated and that the government's accusations will be shown to have no basis in fact."

GM and Ford were charged with conspiring with the National Automobile Dealers Association (NADA); Peterson, Howell & Heather Inc. —the nation's largest car leasing company — and unidentified other parties, to unreasonably restrain and monopolize the manufacture, sale and distribution of cars for fleet use.

NADA and the auto leasing firm were named as coconspirators, but were not indicted.

The indictment and complaint alleged that the decisions by GM and Ford in May of 1970 to eliminate or substantially reduce price concessions to fleet buyers amounted to a conspiracy which "consisted of a continuing agreement, understanding and concert of action to eliminate price concessions and otherwise restrict competition in the sale or lease of automobiles to the fleet market."

Prior to this action, the government charged, both companies publicly made known their willingness to discontinue price concessions to various industry groups opposed to them in the knowledge this information would be communicated to Chrysler and other competitors.

The companies are charged with violating a provision of the Sherman Antitrust Act and would face a $50,000 fine on each account if convicted.

Lower Standard On Boat Wastes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal standards for treatment of human wastes from boats have been weakened in response to protests from a lobby of angry boat owners, it was learned today.

A spokesman for the Boat Owners Association of the United States greeted word of the revised standards with glee and said the regulations apparently would permit use of improved machinator-chlorinator devices, which cost $200 to $300.

An Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) source described these devices as "not much more than a mixmaster" which adds chlorine before discharging human wastes into the water.

The new standards, scheduled for public announcement shortly, would impose the standards on new boats in two years and on older boats three years later.

A year ago the EPA proposed standards which would have required more refined treatment, matching that prescribed for municipal sewage plants and designed to keep boat wastes from making lakes and rivers too filthy for swimming.

But EPA sources said that no economical device attaining such a treatment level was available for boats. The EPA suggested holding tanks with pump-out facilities at marinas, but boat owners complained of odor, lack of space and inadequate marina facilities.

One agency source said the weakened standards responded to the the boat owners' "tremendous lobby and the furor it raised".

"We were deluged by 6,000 missives, many of them from postcards," the source said.

Richard Schwartz, executive director of the Boat Owners Association, said his organization originated the postcards, giving members a choice of signing a message protesting the proposed standards or endorsing them.

Apollo 16's Rocks Differ From Others

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — The first four rocks examined from the moon's highlands appear different from most lunar samples seen before, buoying scientific hopes that Apollo 16's collection may hold answers to some of the moon's early secrets.

The rocks, ranging in size from a softball to a soccer ball, were pulled out of a dirty plastic collection bag Monday by scientists reaching into a nitrogen-filled cabinet with long, black rubber gloves.

The specimens were coated with gray dust and won't be studied in detail until later in the week; but from an initial look through glass viewing ports, Dr. Patrick Butler said all seemed to be breccias — battered rock conglomerates — and all appeared lighter in color and different in composition from rocks collected during the four previous moon expeditions.

The four also looked different from each other. This raised the hopes of geologists that the samples may have different stories to tell when they are cleaned, sliced and examined under microscopes.

Pulitzers In Fields Of Secret Reporting

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Times and columnist Jack Anderson won two of the 1972 Pulitzer Prizes Monday for distinguished journalism for publishing secret government documents on foreign policy. The awards reportedly were disputed strongly by some Columbia University trustees.

The New York Times won the gold medal for public service for publishing the Pentagon Papers, a series of articles which spelled out American involvement in Vietnam. Anderson won the prize for national reporting for publishing accounts of secret meetings at which the Nixon administration made it clear it "tilted" in favor of Pakistan in the Indo-Pakistani War.

For the first time in the 56-year history of the prestigious awards, however, the trustees of Columbia University said they did not agree with some of the selections.

"Had the selections been those of the trustees alone, certain of the recipients would not have been chosen," the trustees said in an unusual statement. The trustees can accept or reject the recommendations of the advisory board composed mainly of journalists, but cannot substitute recommendations of their own.

They did not say which awards they disagreed with.

The New York Times, however, said the dispute among the trustees revolved around the method by which it and Anderson obtained the documents. The Los Angeles Times said some trustees questioned "the wisdom of awarding Pulitzers to entries still subject to litigation and judicial review."

Altogether, 11 Pulitzer prizes were awarded for journalism, five in letters and one in music. For the first time since 1968, no drama award was given.

The other Pulitzer prizes went to:

David Kennerly of United Press International for feature photography for his photographs of the Vietnam War.

Richard Cooper and John Machacek of the Rochester (N.Y.) Times-Union, general local reporting, for their coverage of the Attica prison rebellion.

Timothy Leland, Gerard M. O'Neil, Stephen A. Kurkjian and Ann DeSantis of the Boston Globe, special local reporting, for exposing widespread corruption in Somerville, Mass.

Horst Faas and Michel Laurent of the Associated Press, spot news photography, for their series of photographs titled "Death in Dacca."

John Strohmeyer of the Bethlehem, Pa., Globe-Times for distinguished editorial writing for his campaign to reduce racial tension in Bethlehem.

Jeffrey K. MacNelly of the Richmond News-Leader for editorial cartooning.

Frank Peters Jr., St. Louis Post-Dispatch, for distinguished criticism in music.

In the letters, Joseph P. Lash won the Pulitzer for biography for his book "Eleanor and Franklin," a study of the relationship between President Roosevelt and his wife.

Other letters awards went to:

Wallace Stegner, distinguished fiction, for "Angle of Repose."

Carl N. Degler, history, for his book "Neither Black nor White."

James Wright, poetry, for his "Collected Poems."

Barbara W. Tuchman, for a distinguished book not eligible in any other category, for her "Stilwell and the American Experience in China, 1911-1945."

Jacob Druckman won the award for music for his orchestral piece, "Windows."

Trial Set In Burglary Case

A 20-year-old Stinson Beach garbageman, linked to a series of burglaries in Stinson Beach and Tamalpais Valley, pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court yesterday to two counts of burglary as well as counts of having stolen property and grand theft.

A jury trial was set for the week of June 26.

Richard Warren Lacaze was arrested in mid-March along with fellow garbagemen, Dennis Michael Murphy, 22, by sheriff's deputies who alleged the two were responsible for burglaries in the two areas.

Murphy is to appear May 12 for a preliminary hearing in Marin Municipal Court on charges of vehicle theft, grand theft and receiving stolen property.

Guilty Plea To Assault

A 21-year-old Marin City man charged with assaulting another man with a shotgun during an argument at his home pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court on condition he receive no more than 60 days in jail.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner set sentencing of Robert Ray Coleman for June 12.

"I usually don't agree in cases involving a deadly weapon to penalties this light," he said, but he agreed after attorney William O. Weissich explained the attack.

He said the argument began Feb. 11 at Coleman's home as discussion of a traffic accident, but turned into a religious argument, he said.

Coleman then got his father's shotgun to chase Charles A. Schoenig from his home and hit the man with the gun, he said. It went off, injuring Schoenig.

Coleman was arrested the next day.

Petaluma Splits Over ABAG Pact

The Petaluma City Council split last night over continuing membership in the Association of Bay Area Governments, pending a new association of northern counties and delayed a decision until more facts are available.

Mayor Helen Putnam had suggested the council pass a resolution affirming membership in ABAG until the new North Coast Regional Planning and Development Commission has been certified to process state and federal grant applications as ABAG does now.

"I just want to make sure this city is not going to be denied anything it's entitled to for federal funding," Mrs. Putnam said.

Other councilmen argued that while the county of Sonoma has removed itself from ABAG, none of the cities have yet taken action. Some called her suggested resolution unnecessary since Petaluma will automatically remain in ABAG at least through June when its membership fee comes due.

Only councilman Richard W. Clecak joined Mrs. Putnam in opposing the tabling of her resolution.

While the council has declared it favors membership in the new organization, the councilmen said they would not formally withdraw from ABAG until more details are known about the new group and it is certified to process grant applications.

The Petaluma City Council also:

CHURCH — Heard many suggestions for the future use of the Christian Church building across the street from city hall. They included a museum for Petaluma history, a recreation center and a gallery for pre-historic paintings. The council said it would await a report on the condition of the building before deciding on a use.

SUBDIVISION — Introduced a resolution rezoning land on the east side of South McDowell Boulevard to permit a planned 101-unit Cambridge Square subdivision.

MOTEL — Returned to the planning commission a rezoning request to change industrial land to commercial for a Motel Six adjacent to Sonoma Joe's Restaurant with the suggestion that motels be included on the list of permitted uses in light industrial zones.

WATER — Heard City Atty. Edouard E. Robert advise that the city could not deny requests from county residents to hookup to city water lines where available, but could control growth through the extension of water and sewer lines.

PARK — Approved an application to the General Services Administration to acquire land on Vallejo Street at the National Guard Armory that is being abandoned. The land would be used by the park and recreation department.

REZONING — Approved rezoning 219 Lakeville Street from industrial to commercial to permit the planned Tivoli bar and restaurant.

Vegetable Gardens Urged By Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Monday joined the Senate in approving a resolution calling on all Americans to plant vegetable gardens this summer to help fight high food prices.

The resolution said "each American family is urged, where practical, to plant a vegetable garden for the purpose of fighting inflation, saving money, getting exercise, and having the fun and pleasure of family vegetable growing."

MUSIC REVIEW

New Men's Chorus In Schubert Salute

By ROBERT M. NESS

The Men of Marin, a newly formed male chorus, chose the music of Franz Schubert for its debut performance last night at the First Presbyterian Church in Ross.

About 100 people attended this program commemorating the 175th anniversary of the birth of Schubert. Solo vocal works, piano duos, and two movements from the E flat Trio performed by the Kensington Trio added a delightful diversity to the evening of songs for male chorus.

Most of the songs had the spontaneous simplicity of the optimistic Schubert. "Unendliche Freude," "Wilkommen," "Lieber Schoener Monat Mai," "The Shepherdess" and drinking songs with solos by tenor John Gibb and Doug Perrin were all beautifully done. Under the direction of Wilbur Russell, this group captured the freshness and warmth of these rarely heard works.

Schubert's insistence on transforming misery into beauty occupies the emotional climate of much of his music. His "Fantasy in F Minor" for piano four-hands is one of his most mournful expressions.

The work, dating from the last year of his life, is especially interesting because of its fugal ending. Schubert had just begun formal counterpoint study when he died. This fugue resembles the fugal writing of Beethoven —driving and defiant. But unlike Beethoven, Schubert must surrender to the melancholy lyricism that opens the work.

Pianist Thomas Best joined Russell for an extremely moving performance of this piece. Almost in complete contrast, but also dating from Schubert's last year, was the delightfully simplistic "Kindermarsch" for piano four-hands. David Burnett, a tenor in the choir, performed the piano part with Russell.

The Kensington Trio, pianist Russell, violinist Stephan Golden, and cellist John Bodo had less success with the two movements from the E flat Trio. With the piano lid up to its fullest extension, the ensemble was completely drowned out by the piano. There were some very nice moments when Bodo's Cello playing came through, but for the most part the balance of instruments was completely lacking.

Two solo art songs, "Who is Sylvia" and "Whither" from "The Beautiful Miller-Maid" were done very well by tenor James Mosbacher.

The most serious songs for the chorus closed the program. "The Night," "Grave and Moon," "Rest" were all poignantly realized by this outstanding group.

The chorus is seeking new members and will hold auditions Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the choral room at the church. Men high school age and over with music reading ability are invited to audition.

velopment proposal although the planning commission has turned down enough to have been accused at one point of harassing a major builder.

The decision was one that had the crowd on the edge of its seats although the drama lasted four hours.

Lee moved to turn down the application, which had been denied by the planning commission, and the other freshman councilman, Joan Sestak, seconded.

Neil R. Brixon, after a long pause, voted against the motion, saying the council should work out conditions for the grading "in a manner fair to the applicant and the city." Alfred J. Malvino did likewise, throwing the decision to Fleckles.

Fleckles was the only councilman returned to office in an outpouring of voter sentiment for the strong conservationist position evident last night.

About 20 persons spoke against the grading plan, which one speaker said called for moving enough dirt to cover a football field with 22 feet of soil and Lee synthesized the opposition when he explained his motion.

He said it was contrary to the proposed North Ridge Plan for a park, contrary to the city policy of barring development above 350 feet to save ridges, against the wishes of the city's recent development policy conference, against the county open space plan, and the city park plan, in violation of the consultant's recommendation and contrary to the grading ordinance.

The section he and others relied on bars projects that adversely affect public health, safety, general welfare and conservation of natural beauty.

Another of the major arguments in opposition was that the application came while the city was in the midst of an expensive, exhaustive reworking of its ordinances and master plan.

The arguments didn't sit well with Myers, who stormily protested, "There are a lot of people today saying, 'Let's steal it.'"

In an oration that drew frequent derogatory laughter from the crowd, he said, "God gave the earth to man to live on" and, under the free enterprise system, a man has the right to use his land.

"We want to use our own fill. It is ours and we want to use it," he said. "After all, we have a system of ownership of private property and it shouldn't be taken away without just compensation."

Myers said the estate would save $1 a yard by using its own fill.

Fleckles, arguing against a black and white decision, said the city could erase the existing scar on the crown of the city landmark and "avoid beating hell out of our streets" with 20,000 truck loads of fill if it approved the plan with strict conditions.

He mentioned restrictions like no building on Little King, no grading of a nearby saddle, placing the land in a study zone, giving the city time to buy it, no tree cutting, no traffic disruption and restoring the area to a sylvan appearance.

"This would be the beginning point, not the ending point," he said in urging negotiation of conditions. Myers said the owner would go along with most, but not a study zone that would delay use of the cracked low land next to Safeway.

Nevertheless the viewpoint of Lee, Mrs. Sestak and most in the audience won out.

Charles Brousse, chairman of the town meeting group, called the plan a "private venture in direct violation of the public welfare."

Jeffrey Anderson of 66 Piedmont Road said, "I have heard many articulate arguments against the grading of Little King Mountain. I haven't heard one articulate argument for the grading of Little King Mountain."

A soils engineer hired by the Marin Conservation League said the cut could cause erosion that the developer would propose to solve by building 51 houses. He said the application was not detailed enough to make a reasonable judgment.

Nancy Young of 65 Piedmont Road said she had moved to Larkspur for its rural atmosphere and couldn't understand why the city "should be deprived of the natural heritage of this town merely to support an estate." Her solution: "Each of us could eke out a little fill from our places."

Others complained the grading would damage the view and ruin the hill, but Myers dismissed the public feeling with: "They may be emotionally upset because they are not going to take anybody's property for nothing, but that is not going to make them ill."

He told the council, "You must base it on the facts and the law and not on political expediency."

The plan plugged by Myers has had rough sledding since its first introduction in 1970. Although the peak had been scarred about 20 years ago for fill for Hillview Gardens, the planning commission turned down the plan in 1970 saying it could not approve it without a development concept.

The estate of Adolph A. Tiscornia reapplied with a master plan by Dan Coleman and Associates, but was again turned down in February. The decision was appealed to the council.

The Vinciliones maintained they had no plans for development, but wanted to prepare the property for use.

Two Injured In Mt. Tam Park Car Accident

Two persons were reported still hospitalized today with injuries received in a one-car accident at 10:45 a.m. Saturday on Summit Boulevard in Mount Tamalpais State Park.

Susan Kunkel, 19, of Pacifica, was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital and chest injuries and broken ribs, according to hospital officials.

Michael Blake, 18, of San Francisco, was reported in fair condition at San Francisco General Hospital with a back injury, a hospital spokesman said.

The highway patrol said the pair's car spun out of control on a curve and went off the road.

get a good grip, claimed they did give a good grip — and to back his argument said the rubber gloves have a rough exterior. But when he produced such a glove, the painters said they never had seen a pair with the rough exterior.

The secretary of Painters Local Union No. 4, Morris Evenson, assured the painters that "things can be taken care of," and that "we'll keep a check" to see that the complaints are taken care of. He said it was the first time he had heard about the glove problem.

"Management has cooperated 100 per cent with us," he told newsmen after the session. "This is what happens when a man is killed. Everything comes to a focal point."

But Evenson insisted the district had not been negligent. "It was just one of those things," said of Caton's death.

The painters also objected to working near other men cutting old rivets that "fly like a bullet," and said they often were required to work below one another — subjecting the men below to the danger of falling objects.

One painter, Joseph F. Fenk of Petaluma, complained that he had been required to paint over his head without goggles, and that Sharrett took three hours to get him first aid when the creosote burned his eyes.

Another complaint was that injured men must drive themselves to the doctor, but District Engineer Robert E. Shields said "new written instructions came out one month ago on this."

The painters also asked for safety nets under the approaches north and south of the main towers, but Shields said the state had found that rigging and moving these nets would be more dangerous than not having them. Permanent nets move under workmen over the water between the two towers.

Seating, Parking Request On Tap

A request by Robert Cranston to increase the seating capacity of the Deck House restaurant from 60 to 108 without providing additional parking will be considered by the Sausalito city council at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

Cranston, who does not plan to alter the existing building to increase the seating, is seeking relief from the city's offstreet parking requirements.

The council will also consider adoption of a noise control ordinance for the city.

Hilarita Park Plan On Agenda

A proposal by the city of Tiburon to purchase 4.75 acres of the Hilarita housing property for an open space park will be considered by the Marin County Housing Authority at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the planning chambers of the Marin County Civic Center.

The board also will discuss salaries and benefits for the authority's 11 maintenance employees and a request from a group of Marin City residents that the authority build a bus station in that community.

WAR

said contact had been lost with Landing Zone English, the last allied outpost in the upper one-third of the province.

Four Communist rockets dropped on the market place at Qui Nhon during the midday rush hour, killing six civilians and wounding 19 others. Qui Nhon is the capital of Binh Dinh province.

UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman reported that allied warplanes today bombed and strafed at least 30 government tanks left behind in the Quang Tri sector.

The U.S. command reported 462 air strikes including B52 heavy bomber raids in Quang Tri province in the 24 hours ending at noon Tuesday—the heaviest concentration of air raids in four years.

"I believe Hue is the major objective," Brig. Gen. Thomas W. Bowen, deputy senior U.S. adviser on the northern front, told reporters at the old imperial capital Tuesday night.

The Communist threat was also strong elsewhere. An Loc, 30 miles north of Saigon, was still under siege. Kontum city in the Central Highlands was in danger of an imminent attack. In neighboring Cambodia a government attempt to retake a 60-mile stretch of Communist-controlled Highway 1 stalled and the high command said at least 100 troops were killed, wounded or missing.

Six American aircraft were shot down and five U.S. helicopter crewmen killed trying to rescue U.S. advisers and senior South Vietnamese officers from Quang Tri. The U.S. command also said a Navy F4 Phantom jet was shot down by a Communist MIG21 on a mission over North Vietnam on April 27 and a Navy A7 Corsair was shot down Monday over the north. The pilot was rescued.

The increased Communist activity in South Vietnam's Central Highlands reinforced belief the Communists planned a major move in the area to try to cut the country in half.

An estimated 20,000 North Vietnamese troops overran Quang Tri, a provincial capital only 18 miles below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) and prepared for a possible northern attack against Hue. Another 20,000 Communist troops moved against the former imperial capital for the southwest and set up heavy artillery at captured artillery base Bastogne only 12 miles from the city.

There are 2,000 American servicemen stationed at Phu Bai, the northernmost U.S. outpost, 10 miles south of Hue but so far there have been no attacks against the base. Most of the men are communications specialists but there are also 400 infantrymen stationed there.

President Nixon has said no American ground troops will be used in the current Communist offensive which started March 30 and the American troops were expected to be evacuated if Hue fell.

Employe Unit Seeks Raise

Employees of the Marin County Mosquito Abatement District will ask for a 5.5 per cent salary increase when the salary committee meets at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the district office, said Mgr. Allan D. Telford.

If the committee approves the request, it will go before the full board at its regular meeting at 8 p.m. May 10 in the district office at 201 Third Street, San Rafael, he said.

The district has nine employees, he said. Last year they received a 6 per cent salary increase. It would take 5.5 per cent increase this year and next year to equal the 17 per cent which the Marin County employees have been given over the past three years, he said.

Minor Injuries In Car Collision

Janet M. Meixsell, 31, of 2215 Center Road, Novato, was treated for minor injuries following a collision Saturday at the corner of Ignacio Boulevard and Redwood Highway.

According to the California Highway Patrol report, she failed to yield the right of way at the intersection to a car driven by Lois I. Serrine, 32, of 1130 San Jose Boulevard, Novato.

Hongisto, Duffy To Be Speakers

San Francisco Sheriff Richard Hongisto and Clinton T. Duffy, former warden of San Quentin Prison, will discuss prison reform and capital punishment at 8 p.m. today in the Fine Arts Theater of the College of Marin.

The program is part of a series on prison reform presented by the college's Community Services Department.

Fairfax Girl Is Injured In Car

A 16-year-old Fairfax girl was injured at 7:30 p.m. Saturday when the parked car she was sitting in was struck by another car on Oak Manor Drive, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

Melinda P. Loane of 270 Oak Manor Drive complained of neck pains and a bump on the knee, according to the patrol, and said she would see her own doctor for treatment.

The patrol said a car driven by Deborah L. Ziegler, 16, of 76 Ross Street, San Anselmo, crossed the center line while making a U-turn and ran into the parked car, pushing it across a sidewalk into a front yard.

Belvedere Takes Action To Check Fast Driving

The Belvedere City Council last night voted to install a stop sign on San Rafael Avenue at Marin Avenue to slow traffic, and told city officials to look into other ways of further assuring speed reduction

The council told City Mgr. William L. Cavalli and Police Chief John W. Jaeger to check into the possibility of crosswalks along the avenue, and investigate "rumble" pavement—pavement which vibrates underneath cars and supposedly alerts drivers to the dangers of speeding.

Jaeger, in a report to the council, said 23 citations had been issued on San Rafael Avenue since January. He recommended continued patrol of the street as the most effective way to keep the speed of drivers down.

"Most of the offenders are not from Belvedere," Jaeger told the council. He said bumps and dips in the pavement, which had been suggested, would not solve the problem. Bumps are illegal, he said, and dips would merely force a driver to the side of the road to avoid them with at least one wheel.

Residents of the avenue had complained that cars drove past their houses too fast for conditions, and endangered their children on their way to and from school.

The Belvedere City Council also:

TELEPHONE SERVICE — Heard Franklin Rudolph, manager of the Pacific Telephone business office in Mill Valley, report that the rate of complaints about poor phone service in Belvedere had decreased to below the national average. But, he said, new switching equipment designed to improve service, would not be ready for some time.

FLOOD INSURANCE — Noted that flood insurance was now available to Belvedere residents through the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The department notified the council by letter that the insurance was available, but quoted no rates and said precise maps of the city would have to be studied to determine rates.

SOLICITOR PROBLEMS — Told Jaeger to look further into what was said to be difficulties with Black Muslims soliciting in Belvedere. Jaeger said he had had complaints from some residents that the solicitors had been too demanding, but he said they were within the law and had a right to solicit.

OPERATION IDENTIFICATION — Announced that two engraving tools were available to the police department for use by residents to put their drivers' license number on possessions to lessen the chances that the item would be stolen, and aid in its recovery if it was.

CONSTRUCTION BIDS — Authorized Cavalli to negotiate with Carcano-Velcich Co. of San Rafael for a possible reduction in a bid for reconstruction of a portion of Woodland Lane from Bayview to Bella Vista avenues. The city had estimated it would cost $3,900, Cavalli said, and the low bid was for $5,900.

USE PERMITS — Granted use permits to seven applicants to make additions to existing homes and construct new ones. Those receiving the permits were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Solinger of 217 San Rafael Avenue, Jerome H. Debs II of 314 Bella Vista Avenue, Lucy Krill of 22 Eucalyptus Road, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Noble Jr. of 8 Crest Road, Claude E. Hooton of 63 West Shore Road, Mr. and Mrs. William Knick of 44 Lagoon Road and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Bunnell of 12 Lagoon Road.

SUBDIVISION MAP — Sent back to the planning commission for revisions a subdivision map for a proposed development on Point Belvedere by Hamilton Vose III. Peter Haywood, appearing for Vose, said difficulties with an easement across adjacent property had to be worked out.

BUS SERVICE — Requested the Golden Gate Bridge and Transportation District to ignore an earlier city request for a 30-day trial discontinuance of bus service. The experiment was an attempt to stop bus noise and air pollution in the city, said Cavalli, but since proposed, engineers have discovered that it was unsafe for buses to run on Main Street in Tiburon, the planned method to provide service to Belvedere residents.

UNDERGROUND UTILITIES — Referred to the finance committee the possibility of using city money to put some utility lines along San Rafael Avenue between Tiburon Boulevard and Hilarita Circle underground. Cavalli said $4,100 in state money was available for the project now, but it would cost about $15,000. More state money would be available in the future by the time the project could be done, he said.

RECYCLING DEPOT — Heard a report from Mayor Thomas S. Price that the Mill Valley Refuse Service would assist by a reduction in charges the efforts of the Belvedere-Tiburon Committee on the Environment to dispose of rubbish which it collected but cannot recycle.

OPEN SPACE — Agreed to cooperate informally with Tiburon in investigating the preservation of open space on the Tiburon peninsula.

TRAFFIC SAFETY —Voted to notify the state that the city will not accept $1,158 in state funds available under a program to improve traffic conditions, because state regulations make it cost more to apply for the funds than it is worth.

Rohnert Park Council To Study A Tax Increase

The Rohnert Park City Council last night agreed to study an increase in the bedroom tax to bolster the park development fund.

Newly elected councilman Louis G. Beary suggested the council consider raising the fees so that new developments pay their own way in developing parks and recreation programs.

City Clerk Kathryn Logue said the council agreed the average fee of $60 per home perhaps should be increased in light of the April defeat of the park bond issue and reluctance to increase property taxes to fund new parks.

The Rohnert Park City Council Also:

COMMITTEE — Reported that eight persons have applied for membership on the Citizens Advisory Committee to Update the General Plan and that more names will be sought before making appointments.

SPEAKERS — Agreed to form a council speakers bureau to go to schools to explain how local government operates.

APPOINTMENTS — Named councilman Armando Flores as liaison to the planning commission and Warren K. Hopkins to the city-schools coordinating committee.

MEETING — Set a joint meeting with the planning commission for May 10 at 7:30 p.m. at city hall to discuss planning philosophies.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance.

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wearout Allowance
35,000 miles	Prorated on Miles Driven
40 month	$10.00
39 month	8.00
36 month	6.00
33 month	5.00
30 month	4.00
24 month	3.00
18 month	2.00

Tread Wear Expectancy offer does not apply to tires used commercially.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Bekins Trucking Co. Stock Recommended

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We are a young couple interested in a long-term growth investment. Can you suggest a stock? — M.C.

A. At this time the trucking industry appears to have above average potential. Within the group I like Bekins Co. (OTC) which is still trading at a reasonable multiple of 15x last year's earnings. Further, management foresees earnings this year topping record 1971 results of $1.25 a share. Profits for the first three months were above year earlier levels. While the moving and storage business still accounts for the lion's share of revenues, Bekins has diversified into several other areas.

In 1970 Bekins purchased 45 per cent of Nationwide Trailer Rental Systems; more recently Bekins exercised its option to buy another 45 per cent and made a tender offer for the remaining 10 per cent. According to management Nationwide should operate profitably this fiscal year. Company also operates a commercial building maintenance business, provides international moving to the government, industry and individuals. In February a security guard company was acquired.

Dividends, which have been distributed since 1923, are currently being distributed at the modest rate of 40 cents per share annually. Long-term debt was $9.8 million as of Dec. 31, 1971 and current asset ratio stood at 2.7-to-1.

Q. In 1966 we started purchasing Savings Bonds. The first of these are reaching maturity. Does their value continue to grow yearly? If so, for how long? — J.M.

A. Yes, your bonds continue to draw interest after maturity for a 10-year extension period at a 5½ per cent annual rate. Although older savings bonds have been granted three extensions for a 40-year maximum life, there is no guarantee that newer E bonds will be accorded this same privilege.

In recent months savings bond saleu have been at levels not seen since the 1945 War Loans. As of March, 1972, more than $55 million in Series E, H and Freedom shares were outstanding, a 5 per cent increase over the year earlier figure.

Gibraltor Corp. Posts Dividend

BEVERLY HILLS — The Board of Directors of Gibraltar Financial Corporation of California today declared a 5 per cent stock dividend, payable June 30, 1972, to shareholders of record June 1, 1972. Gibraltar Savings, a subsidiary of Gibraltar Financial Corporation, opened this month at Strawberry Town and Country Shopping Center at Alto.

GFC reported net earnings per share of $2 for the year 1971 and $.56 for the first quarter 1972.

Ratner Corp. Notes Earnings Increase

SAN DIEGO (BW) — Ratner Corp. had net earnings of $915,708, equal to 45 cents per common share on 2,013,710 shares outstanding, for the first three months of 1972, Stanley Foster, president, has announced.

In the like 1971 quarter, the company had net earnings of $452,265, or 22 cents a share on the same number of shares outstanding during the period.

Stock Rally Fizzles On Wall Street

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices closed sharply lower today in moderate training for the second consecutive session after a brief attempt at a rally fizzled on the New York Stock Exchange.

Declines led advances by around 400 issues among the more than 1,740 crossing the tape.

Prices also slipped on the American Stock Exchange in fairly active trading.

Analysts said the softness stemmed partly from concern over Price Commission policies to cut some profits. Also, investors were giving closer attention to news of allied setbacks in Vietnam.

Other analysts said the market was in a position to move lower because it is overbought and overvalued.

Ford and General Motors were active and lower much of the session. A block of 120,000 shares of Ford traded at 68, off 1 1-4.

Gold mining issues showed strength in early trading in view of the rising price gold in Europe.

Purex Corp. Notes Earnings Increase

LAKEWOOD (BW) Purex Corp. Ltd. has announced increases in both sales and earnings for the third quarter and first nine months of fiscal 1972.

For the quarter ended March 31 Purex reported net incomes of $3,877,000 or 35 cents per share compared to $3,474,000 or 31 cents per share for the like period last year.

FIRE GUTS RESIDENCE

Marin County firemen squirted water on the last smouldering portion of an eight-by-16-foot one-room dwelling on Candelero Road in Forest Knolls. Damage to the dwelling, occupied by Earl Kearney, was estimated at $300 to the building and $400 to the contents. Firemen have not determined the cause of the fire, discovered about 4 p.m. yesterday.

Dinner Slated For Retiring Novato Teachers

Teachers retiring from the Novato Unified School District will be honored at a "Bon Adieu" dinner at the Alvarado Inn, Ignacio, at 7:30 p.m. May 19.

The names of teachers to be honored will be announced May 15, according to Robert Eddy, Novato High School counselor. They will be given life memberships in the Novato Teachers Association.

The Stark Twins of Daly City will entertain at a no-host cocktail party preceding the dinner, according to Eddy. Organist Linda Almeida will entertain during the dinner and Jo Ann Bowker and Friends will present a musical program after dinner.

Reservations can be made through the building representatives at each school in the district or Eddy.

Outspoken Resident Wins Rule On Parking From City Council

An outspoken resident who complained of cramped parking on the street where he lives last night prodded the San Rafael City Council into modifying a stopgap narrow-street parking ordinance. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 1)

The ordinance called for no parking "on any street" unless such parking leaves 12 feet of roadway beside, in front of and behind the vehicle. But George S. Collins, 331 Laurel Place, complained that "there isn't five inches of space when I park at my house."

Collins, it was discovered after he spoke, lives on what is classified as improved roadway. The council then directed City Atty. Fred E. Robbins Jr. to redraft the ordinance, inserting the word "unimproved" to make it read no parking "on any unimproved street."

The second portion of the ordinance, concerning driveway parking, was dropped until the entire document is redrafted so that it would conform with the revamped first protion.

The San Rafael City Council also:

ABANDONMENT — Continued until its May 15 meeting a hearing on the abandonment of Auburn Street right-of-way for exchange of adjacent private land needed for proposed intersection redesign at Bellam, Jacoby and Auburn streets. City Engineer Ely Caillouette said he hadn't been able to contact the owner "on answers we need."

AMENDMENT — Asked Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner to return to the planning commission amendments to the zoning ordinance pertaining to environmental and design review. The wording in several paragraphs "is so generalized it could be ruled illegal if tested in court," Hotchner said. The public hearing was continued to the council's June 5 meeting.

FIRE — Advised some residents displeased with fire department response to a recent house fire on Miraflores Avenue to air their complaints to the city fire commission when that body meets today at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

WIDENING — Heard Norris Rawles, director of public works, estimate that the fourth and final phase of four-lane widening of South San Pedro Road would cost $1.3 million. The work will go to bid next Tuesday with work expected to start in July.

EL MARINERO — Approved final adoption for the uninhabited El Marinero Annexation.

REDEVELOP — Approved final adoption for an ordinance declaring the need for a redevelopment agency and declaring the city council as the agency.

COURTHOUSE — Put off discussion of the proposed $650,000 purchase of the old county courthouse site until the council's May 15 meeting. City Attorney Robbins had recommended no action. "We must finalize our agreement with the potential developer (McKeon Construction Co. of Sacramento), and there's nothing in writing yet," he said.

SIGNALS — Adopted a resolution of intent to obligate federal funds for modification of traffic signals in the downtown and Freitas Parkway areas. The city must put up $100,000 to do the work and, when completed, will be reimbursed $75,000 by the U.S. government. Bids will be opened May 26 at 10 a.m. at city hall.

ACCESS — Passed a resolution requesting the state Division of Highways to review the consideration of an access road between Highway 101 and Highway 17 to the Golden Gate Bridge District bus yard. A previous resolution was submitted and rejected by the state.

CANAL — Agreed to hire the firm of Hoffman and Albritton, San Rafael, to survey Allardt's Canal. The council did not set a price.

CONSULT — Hired the consulting firm of Sedway and Cooke of San Francisco at a maximum of $4,000 to prepare the conservation and open space element of the general plan. Recent state legislation had called for planning law changes. The firm also will help in forvation of a city redevelopment to project plan.

SENIOR — Nominated Marguerite F. Simpson, 69, of 2 Embarcadero Way, as outstanding senior citizen of Marin. The competition is sponsored by the Marin Senior Coordinating Council Inc. of San Rafael.

BILLIARDS — Unanimously approved an application for 18 pool tables at Jess Coleman Restaurant and Recreation Center at 809 Lincoln Ave.

EQUAL — Removed the position of director of public works from the control of the city manager. "This puts all department heads on an equal footing," City Attorney Robbins said.

CLAIM — Authorized a $2,000 payment for damages claimed by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Ring III, 5 Locksly Lane, after sewage backed into their home last Sept. 27 when a nearby city sewer line stopped up.

MEETING — Adjourned to its next regular meeting at 8 p.m. May 15 at city hall.

Presbyterian Church To Burn Mortgage

The Presbyterian Church of Novato, a 76-year-old institution, will have mortgage burning ceremonies at its newest home, 710 Wilson Avenue, at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Theme of the ceremonies will be the "Spirit of 76," noting the long history of the church, according to Arlene Moeller, publicity chairman.

The church once occupied the building which now serves as Novato City Hall, and the first service was held at the present church in January, 1963.

The chancel choir, directed by Esther Embrey, will present special music and will be dressed in oldtime costume. Refreshments will be served. Dorothy Ballard and Jack S. Hupp are program coordinators.

Planning On Agenda For Sonomans

Sonoma County and municipal officials will hold an all-day session Saturday at 9 a.m. at Los Robles Lodge, Santa Rosa, to review growth control and the new regional government.

Sonoma County Planning Director George Kovatch and C. Lawrence Andrew, executive officer of the local Agency Formation Commission, will discuss spheres of influence that cities must adopt as planning tools.

County planners have advised city council to develop spheres of influence and plot out their development zones as a means of controlling and planning growth.

Sonoma supervisor Henry Spomer will review the joint powers agreement with Mendocino County to form the North Coast Regional Planning and Development Commission as an alternative to the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Pending legislation in Sacramento will also be reviewed.

Annual Meeting Location Changed

The annual meeting of the Marin Audubon Society, originally scheduled at the Ross School, has been changed to the Pacific Gas and Electric building, Third and Brooks streets in San Rafael.

Meeting time of 8 p.m. Friday remains the same. Five new directors will be chosen at the meeting.

San Rafael City Council Seeks Open-Space Vote

The San Rafael City Council last night — after hearing some residents say they favor the city first, the county last — decided it wants a popular vote on a county proposal for preservation of open space.

The county, in a plan outlined by Pierre W. Joske, director of county parks and recreation, had asked council endoresement of city-county cooperation in acquisition of open space in Marin through increasing the county tax rate by 10 cents in all cities. Under the proposal the county would have sole power to determine what areas would be acquired.

But the council, after urging by Mayor C. Paul Bettini, said it favored a system wherein cities have some powers and said the matter should be put before the electorate.

The acquisition program Joske outlined would provide "county leadership in identifying and securing the retention" of open space, with operation of those areas to be provided by the county.

One resident, opposing the proposal, said, "I put me first. Let's take care of ourselves (San Rafael)."

His sentiments were echoed by another resident, who added, "Let the unincorporated areas and the rest of the county worry about themselves."

One woman, however, favored the idea. "I'm not an island," she said. "Marin's all around me. I wouldn't mind spending my 10 cents on the purchase of land in Sausalito."

But, Bettini said, "We (the city) want some jurisdiction, some voice in where that money will go."

Bettini said "all the supervisors will be fighting for their own districts, and we just don't want the supervisors to have the final say."

Councilman Fred E. Jensen said San Rafael's tax levy would amount to more than $160,000 a year. "In 10 years that would be about $2 million, and I don't see the city getting it back."

Councilman John A. Miskimen suggested a "regional" district, comprised of the San Rafael-Gallinas Valley area. "This would be in San Rafael's interest," he said.

Joske said acquisition "is of countywide interest" and that "city-county cooperation is needed in the preservation of open space."

He said funds derived from the 10-cent tax will be used exclusively for open space acquisition, and areas "under immediate threat of development" would be given priority.

Old Town Festival Is Announced

Novato merchants from East Grant Avenue will present their second annual Oldtown Festival and Art Show May 20 from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

About 100 artists will display their paintings and 10 per cent of the proceeds of art sales will go toward a scholarship fund, reported Barbara Murphy, show coordinator.

An art contest for young people will be held, Mrs. Murphy said. The General Gap, a singing group, will perform at 1 p.m. and the Rural Band at 2:15 p.m.

All festival participants will be in oldtime costumes and two blocks of Grant Avenue, from Machin Avenue to Reichert Avenue, will be closed to vehicles during the show.

Bruce Lauritzen Art On Display

A collection of paintings by Larkspur artist Bruce Lauritzen will be on display through May at the third floor art gallery of the Marin Civic Center administration building.

The exhibit, made up of 14 large paintings, is sponsored by the Marin Museum Association.

School Board Backs Discredited System

The San Rafael Board of Education has revived an old plea: that it be permitted to fill its own vacancies occurring through in-term resignations.

The board last week directed a letter to the city council suggesting discussion of changing the city charter to permit this.

As it now stands (and has ever since the charter was adopted in 1912), in-term vacancies on the board of education are filled by city council appointment.

FROM TIME to time in the past, board members have objected to having appointments made by the city council. They have contended they are in better position to do it themselves. At the time of the general charter revision five years ago, the board asked the charter revision committee to include such a change, but its request was turned down.

In earlier days, the school board's feeling that it should make its own appointments was given color of validity by the fact that boards in the vast majority of California school districts — which are not subject to city charters — had such power.

Abuses of that power became so notorious, however, that the Legislature changed the law to require special elections to fill all school board vacancies except those on city charter boards. This is now the law, although there is a bill in the current Legislature by state Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, calling for return to the old system.

SCHOOL BOARDS lost their power to appoint their own members because of what Assemblyman William T. Bagley called "political incest." It became common practice for a board member who did not plan to seek re-election to resign near the end of his term. His fellow members would then name a friend with like views to fill the position, who would then be able to run for election as an incumbent.

It worked fine — in keeping school boards sort of closed-membership clubs. Boards became so "inbred" that any reform or change was impossible.

We do not believe that is what the San Rafael board members want. More likely they feel there is a rift between them and City Hall, and that the councilmen have too little knowledge of school problems — both of which are true.

THE PROPOSAL received its current impetus when it was brought up at the April 11 board meeting by Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. He said some city councilmen had suggested the change, and that it would permit the board to fill its own vacancies "as generally done in the state."

Perhaps Kramer never heard of the "anti-political incest" law.

If the charter is to be changed, it should be to require special elections to fill school board vacancies. This, not the old in-house appointment, is in fact what is "generally done in the state."

Feeding The Birds

Birds will eat almost anything. Stale nuts, popcorn, cottage cheese, doughnuts, and even pancakes have found their way with regularity onto some feeding trays. Some people find ground dog food very satisfactory. Peanut butter used to be popular, but some birds have choked to death on it and it is no longer recommended.

There is a basic decency about those who care enough for the small creatures of the earth to feed them regularly. Many Marinites do.

Attacks On Utility Firms Reach Point Of Absurdity

By EARL G. WATERS

The attacks upon the public utility companies in recent months have reached the point of ubiquitous absurdity. Because they occupy a position of monopoly of sorts, these companies have been the butt of jokes, criticism and resentment ever since they became monopolistic.

What is forgotten is that utility service companies were not ever thus. In the earlier days there were competing companies supplying electricity, gas and water in the same territory.

But government determined that it was economically imprudent to have duplicate facilities and lines servicing customers within the same area. So it was decreed that such services would be provided by only one company in a given territory and that such companies would be regulated. Today we have these regulated monopolies because of government edict.

And the utilities are regulated. The Public Utilities Commission not only tells them what rates they can charge and dictates the services to be provided, but also tells them what profits they shall make. Generally, utility stockholders receive dividends about equal to those earned on savings accounts.

THE ATTACKS COME from both the public and some members of the Legislature. They are directed at rates charged and, in tune with the times, accusations that utility plants are endangering the ecology with pollutants.

So serious have the threats from the ecologists become that power shortages followed by unemployment loom in the future.

Some in the Legislature have been sharp in their criticisms of the rates established by the PUC and bitter about increases granted. They ignore the fact that wages, materials and borrowing continue to rise, or that rate increases cannot put excess money into the pockets of the utilities since profits are regulated.

Other legislators have directed their aim at utility advertising. They claim that since there exists a power shortage or the danger of such shortage, utilities shouldn't advertise for more business. They further claim that since the utilities are monopolies there is no need for advertising. They then contend that if they do advertise, they should not be allowed to take it out of the money paid by the consumers.

COMPETITION ASIDE, utilities advertise to stay in business. They must offset the attacks of the ecologists if they are to survive. They must strive to get the best usage of available power. This means creating a market for the huge reserves which pile up during off peak hours.

Granted the need for advertising, the issue of how such expenditures shall be charged is silly. Regardless of how it is charged, the money must come from the user, just as all other consumer advertising is financed. What possible difference can it make whether the costs are deducted as expenses or from profits? The fact remains the regulatory body recognizes that investors must make a return on their money. It has pegged the return on investment at about 7.5 per cent. While they do not permit more, anything short of that is grounds for a rate increase.

It would seem that some of the fuss created in the Legislature is merely to distract from the inadequacy of the lawmakers to deal with real problems. The attacks on the utilities serve as a convenient smoke screen to cover the failures in tax reform, school finance, and other major issues.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Finds Some Fear To Sign Petitions

Is the United States still a democracy? Why are people afraid to exercise their legal and constitutional right?

I am speaking specifically of the right of initiative, which is provided in California's state constitution. There are presently many initiative petitions circulating in Marin County. Several are controversial — like the California Marijuana Initiative. If enough signatures are obtained, these issues will be put to a vote on the November ballot.

I do not understand why some people fear that signing these initiatives could cost them their jobs, or result in an F.B.I. investigation. It is our right to call for a public vote to establish legislation. If we do not act as a democracy, we shall not be one!

'Just The Facts, Man' On Water Situation

Thank you for your explicit and timely clarification of Marin County water prospects for 1972, as outlined in the editorial of April 18. Your recollection of the Marin Municipal Water District general manager was indeed accurate. He stated it would take three consecutive dry years to produce a water shortage. This statement compared with recent news items warning of impending water shortage was confusing.

The acre feet needed for Marin County yearly compared with the acre feet held in our lakes presently certainly put the situation (or water) in perspective. Perhaps now the water district will take a hard look at (1). the future water needs for the people of Marin; (2). how needs can be met feasibly — including factual alternatives; (3). if future needs demand additional source of supply, how to obtain quality water.

An overworked cliche seems apropos — "Just the facts, man."

Supervisor Wornum Retorts To Fusselman

I would like to answer, briefly, three of Mr. Fusselman's personal remarks. ("County Comment," April 21.)

The supervisor's salary increase of $1.00 a month to $1,100 a month represents 10 per cent spread over four years, or an average of but 2½ per cent a year — an increase every other employee would scorn. Remuneration from the other boards I sit on fails to cover the time I spend on them.

I am at the Civic Center much more frequently then every Tuesday, a fact Mr. Fusselman could discover if he ever would himself visit the Civic Center — something that has never occurred in my whole term in office. Additionally I spend much time with the people of my constituency, where the real action is.

I would be happy to run at large and think that it would be beneficial for the county to have each supervisor represent all the county's citizens. I should point out however that traditionally county-wide elections are advantageous to re-election of the incumbents — something that I don't think, judging by the tone of his column, Mr. Fusselman much desires.

Objects To Paying Salary Of 'Traitor'

As a Marin County taxpayer and ex-GI, I vehemently resent having even one penny of my tax dollars going to pay the wages of any city, county, state, or federal employee who advocates the defeat of this great nation.

Robert O. Moore's letter, as printed in the Independent Journal, reveals him to be cowardly, contemptible, and a traitor. I'll be more than happy to pay for his immediate one-way passage to Hanoi.

Two Jurors Report Different Experience

In answer to the criticism leveled by Mr. W. Offner we wish to present our rebuttal. We also reported for jury duty on April 17 and served through the 21st. We are amazed at the differences in our experiences. Differences so vast that if we didn't remember Mr. Offner we would be prone to believe that he had reported for duty at some other court on some other planet.

We found Mrs. Younglove, the deputy, charming, patient and despite her load of work, she always made time for all the jurors and their problems (and there were many). As to the information she offered it was not only not insipid but extremely informative to us as novice jurors. This diatribe of Mr. Offner's was most unfair to a hard working and sincere woman who does her job excellently and with unusual sensitivity.

As for the judges, if anything needs an overhauling it must be Mr. Offner's perceptive senses or perhaps Mr. Scrooge has been re-incarnated. The judges we came into contact with were as conscientious as it was their duty to be, no mgre, no less.

The Honorable Judge David Baty, on whose jury we served, gave us instructions in clear concise terms which illuminated the legal terms of which we as novice jurors had small knowledge and which helped us to bring in what we believed to be, a fair verdict. His alert handling of the court proceedings made the trial run smoothly, efficiently and to the quickest conclusion possible, while giving all parties concerned their fair and equitable time in court. . .

Democratic Scramble Leaves Nixon Less To Worry About

WASHINGTON — It seemed impossible, yet in the two latest primaries, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, the Democratic jig-saw puzzle has been scrambled worse than before. The liberal-left will not have Hubert Humphrey, the winner in Pennsylvania, and the moderate-conservatives will not accept George McGovern who scored a smashing victory in the Bay State.

A strong undercurrent occasionally breaking to the surface has it that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy will be the compromise candidate as the convention at Miami Beach flounders through two or three turbulent ballots. The United Auto Workers convention in Atlantic City the other day generated the sights and sounds of a national political convention with a forest of "draft Kennedy" banners held aloft to accompanying cheers as he entered the hall. His brushoff of a question as to whether he would accept a draft at Miami Beach was hardly convincing.

He may genuinely not want the nomination. He may feel this is not a Democratic year. He may want to demonstrate his ability for four more years in the Senate, by which time the unhappy memory of Chappaquiddick will have faded. Yet beging a Kennedy, surrounded at Miami Beach by ardent apostles, he will find it difficult, if not impossible, to say no if the present drift continues.

THE DEMOCRATIC party has a host of talented men other than the hard-pressed candidates in the marathon primaries who might measure up to the fearful demands of the presidency. Yet, given the system of catch-as-catch-can and the essential media buildup, they are lost to view.

Unhappy at the prospect of a shattering collision that would disrupt the part and make the November prospect all but hopeless, some Democrats with at least marginal influence are dreaming of an alternative. They have come up with two names. One is Justice Byron R. White of the United States Supreme Court. Appointed by President Kennedy in 1962, White has been a moderate on the court. He will be 55 in June.

The other name is Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota. In seven years in the Senate he has set a remarkable record for advanced legislation in the social welfare field. His approach to policy is reasoned, thorough, careful. Mondale is up for re-election to the Senate with such a clear track that the Republicans are having a hard time finding a candidate to oppose him. He is 44.

To the wider public across the country, these men are unknown. Miami Beach is little more than two months away. This is far too short a time for a national buildup such as projected Wendell Willkie into politics as the candidate against FDR in 1940 with a solid year of employing high-powered publicity. So the dreamers appear to be left with their hopes of a surprise candidate impossibly high up on the tree.

IT IS A prescription written for President Nixon and, beset with troubles, he must now and then get laughs out of the Democratic scramble. He is the man in the office with three and a half years of on-the-job training. He can pose the question whether, regardless of his own errors of omission and commission, a newcomer could do better. What the President must fear is a vote of the disaffected bent on nothing but, in that fine old American cliche, turning the rascals out. It has happened before when the winner was hardly more than a surrogate for a massive discontent.

As the decibel level of the candidates' talk rises, one common denominator is rather painfully evident. They have had little or no administrative experience. A liberal Democrat who served in the Kennedy administration and who might normally be in the McGovern camp remarked recently that he would find it hard to vote for McGovern because he had been such a poor administrator as head of Food for Peace. Humphrey was mayor of Minneapolis from 1945 to '49. Muskie was governor of Maine for four years.

These men are condemned by the ordeal of the primaries to talk and talk and talk. And it's just possible that people are fed up with so much talk.

Some Doctors Charging Fees For Completing Insurance Forms

Some doctors have begun charging patients a fee for filling out and signing standard health insurance forms.

The American Medical Association acknowledges it is happening in several parts of the country, but involves only a small minority of doctors.

Here's how it works:

You visit your doctor, say, for a routine checkup. When your bill arrives, you find on it, in addition to his regular charge, a $5 fee for completing an insurance form.

Doctors who follow this practice, and the trade magazine "Medical Economics" which is promoting it, justify it on the basis that completion of insurance forms takes a significant portion of a doctor's time, and sometimes requires him to hire additional staff. Hence, they argue, the patients who benefit from completion of these forms should pay extra for the service.

It seems evident that doctors in fact are being swamped with paperwork as more and more people are covered by health insurance, and as insurance forms grow ever more varied and complex. On the other hand, the operation of voluntary health insurance will be undermined to a degree if doctors generally start charging for completion of the forms necessary for a patient to submit a claim.

If your doctor's bill is $50 and you are covered by a policy that would pay 80 per cent of it, you would normally recover $40 from insurance, so that you were out of pocket $10. However, if the doctor tacks on an additional $5 fee for completing the insurance form, your out-of-pocket cost is $15.

This reporter asked the American Medical Association whether the practice of charging an extra fee for completing insurance forms is condoned by AMA.

The AMA responded that it has "strongly recommended, through its Judicial Council, that physicians should not charge patients for filling out the basic, simplified health insurance forms."

"However, many of the forms are complex and a charge for completing these may be made by the physician in accordance with local custom," the AMA statement said.

It said any patient who feels he has been "unfairly charged" by a physician for completing a relatively simple insurance form should "bring the matter to the attention of the local medical society."

The obvious long-range solution to this problem —fair to both doctors and patients —is to standardize and simplify health insurance forms so their completion won't be such a burden on doctors and their staffs. Fortunately, steps already are being taken in this direction.

"The AMA is working with the federal government and private insurance carriers to devise a standard computerized form for all cases," an AMA spokesman said. "Adoption of such a form would reduce the time and expense involved."

The Night Disaster Struck At Novato City Council Meet

The office of Civil Defense declared the Novato Community House a disaster area one Wednesday morning after a block warden saw a score of benumbed bodies lying about the auditorium.

Several survivors were discovered slumped over the coffee urn and a few were crawling toward the soft drink machine when rescuers arrived.

Maps and charts had tumbled from bulletin boards, city council agendas were scattered about the hall, and stale tobacco air hung over the scene.

"IT'S A CASE of asphyxiation by hot air," said Dr. Werner Von Werner, noted specialist on the after-effects of marathon city council meetings.

"This phenomenon occurs when you have lawyers, developers, ecologists, city officials and irate housewives in one room at the same time," he explained.

Judging by a burned-out tape recorder discovered in the debris, investigators estimated the last voice spoke at 4:48 a.m.

"By the condition of the bodies, I would guess the last victim lapsed into unconsciousness between item 37 and item 38 on the council agenda," said Dr. Weldon Stopper.

THE MARIN COUNTY Grand Jury indicted city officials for "willful negligence" since they had ample warning the disaster was impending, and didn't move to prevent it.

"The first danger signal occurred shortly after midnight when the mayor got a cramp in his arm from prolonged gavel pounding," the jury foreman said.

"We also have evidence that three lawyers were stricken by laryngitis at about 1:30 a.m., ordinarily grounds for an alert. Four residents were carried in their chairs to the emergency ward at Novato General Hospital suffering from acute cases of paralyzed buttocks. One of the victims will never sit again.

"The police log showed that at 3:30, 3:31 and 3:32 a.m., three anxious wives filed missing person reports on their husbands, men in good health and good spirits, last seen on their way to the council meeting.

"Yet, with all these warning signs, the meeting continued," the foreman said. "Ironically, the city manager, discovered in a deep sleep, had clutched in his hand a proposed ordinance to set a midnight closing for council meetings. It's unfortunate he couldn't have stayed awake long enough to present it to the council."

Unfortunately, the story of the meeting went unreported in newspapers the next day since the reporters fell asleep, pens in midair.

Recall Of The New Model That Flunked Its Road Tests

WASHINGTON — Presidential Motors announced last week that it was recalling the "Muskie," once considered the hottest model on the road.

In a terse statement announcing the recall, Presidential Motors said, "Engineering difficulties and lack of consumer acceptance have forced us to recall the 'Muskie.' "

The story behind the rise and fall of the "Muskie" is one of the great stories of automobile history. It was originally developed by such great presidential designers as Averill Harriman, Clark Clifford, Sol Lino witz Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania and John Gilligan of Ohio. They wanted a quiet model that would hold the middle of the road, had the confidence of the people, and was safe at any speed.

From a design point of view, it had to appeal to the little man, but at the same time it had to look like a Lincoln.

AFTER WORKING at their drawing boards for two years, they came up with the "Muskie," a name they were sure would have consumer appeal.

Before investing money in the model, the manufacturer took surveys all over the country. They discovered that, compared to other models that would be offered in 1972, the "Muskie" was leading 2 to 1. At one point, it was rated more popular than the "Nixon," and Presidential Motors was sure it had a winner on its hands.

As a result of the surveys, millions of dollars were allotted for a high-powered advertising campaign. The "Muskie" was described as a front-runner, unbeatable in the cities and in the countryside. It was designed for comfort and had something for everybody — the poor, the farmers, the blue-collar workers, the businessmen. It came in all colors and all sizes. It was, according to the ads, the best buy for 1972.

With an overconfidence not seen in automobile circles since Detroit put out the "Romney," the manufacturers took the "Muskie" up to New Hampshire for road testing.

EVERYTHING WAS going along fine when suddenly, in front of a national TV audience, the "Muskie" broke down in Manchester, N.H.

Presidential Motors was appalled. All the time and effort and money invested in the model was wiped out by one small radiator leak.

To make matters worse, the press reported that the "Muskie" had a very short fuse and every once in a while went out of control.

The engineers and designers took another look at it and tried to repair the damage before trial runs in Florida. But the "Muskie" came in a bad fourth in the race, and some people at Presidential Motors decided they had another "Romney" on their hands.

The advertising money was cut back, and the people working on the "Muskie" campaign were taken off salary.

Investors started backing off. The consumer began taking interest in another, smaller model called a "McGovern," which had been built in the back room of a garage in South Dakota.

THE NEXT DISASTER took place in Wisconsin when, after a slow start, the "Muskie" ran out of gas.

The final trials came in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. Presidential Motors decided that if they couldn't sell the "Muskie" there, they couldn't sell it anywhere.

Once the sales figures came in from those two states, Presidential Motors had no choice but to recall the model. The manufacturers have announced that while the "Muskie" will not be sold in Ohio, Michigan, New York or California this year, it will be on display in the showroom at the Miami Convention Center, in case anyone still wants to buy it.

Pleads Guilty To Auto Theft

Jerry Lee Miller, 28, of Sebastopol pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to felony car theft in San Rafael Jan. 10.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner set sentencing for June 12, when, under terms of the plea bargain, Miller will receive a suspended state prison term and serve four months in Marin County Jail.

Miller and another 28-year-old Sebastopol man, Gerald David Flowers, were arrested after highway patrol officers followed their weaving car north on Highway 101 and stopped it on Civic Center Drive. Officers said the car had been stolen earlier that day in San Rafael.

Flowers pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of car theft in municipal court.

The Sausalito Nursery School will sponsor a "spring fair" from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday on the city's fairgrounds, across from the downtown ferry slip.

The fair will feature 90 booths, manned by artists, cratsmen and flea marketeers, as well as wandering minstrels, clowns, yoga demonstrations, the Red Garter calliope and performances of "The Magic Garden," a puppet show by Valerie Barber.

Reagan Critic Back To Work

LOS BANOS, Calif. (UPI)— An employe of a state-owned power generating plant was back on the job Monday after being sent home because of a sign on his pickup truck critical of Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"Reagan pays his employes like he pays his taxes," read the sign mounted on a truck owned by William R. Ingram.

Reagan admitted last year that he paid no state income taxes for 1970 because of "business reverses." State water employes are negotiating with the state and have voted to strike unless their wages are brought up to federal levels.

Rezone Action Postponed By Corte Madera Council

The Corte Madera Town Council last night, after listening to a lengthy discussion, postponed action on the proposed rezoning of 21 acres of Meadowsweet Drive from multi-residential to single family use.

The town's planning commission had earlier recommended the rezoning for the land which runs up a hill and has a single access to Meadowsweet Drive.

The property, known as Quarry Hill is owned by American Savings and Loan Association, and has been proposed for a planned development if the present zoning is retained.

Julius Selinger, attorney for the owners, said that if the land is sold and developed, the potential developer plans to keep "usable open space" and also include housing for persons of moderate income scattered within the development.

The council finally voted 4 to 1 to take the matter under advisement until the June 5 meeting and suggested that the owners talk to the town's planners in the meantime. Robert B. Flahive voted against the proposal.

In another matter, Flahive, the council's newest member, also cast the single "no" vote. He wanted the counci to endorse the concept of a county regional park district for acquiring open space proposed by People for Parks and Open Space.

The Corte Madera Town Council also:

MARSHLAND — Refused to consider a new proposal by Frank Burke for the development of the Heerdt property in east Corte Madera, a proposal disapproved by the town planning commission preliminary to going before the Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

ORDINANCE — Adopted an ordinance introduced last month which clarified rules concerning home occupations.

NORTH RIDGE — Set a meeting for 7:30 p.m. May 22 with the Larkspur and Mill Valley city councils concerning joint purchase acquisition of North Ridge as open sapce.

WATERING — Turned down a request by the Corte Madera Hill Dwellers Association that the city water new evergreen trees planted by the association.

ABANDONMENT — Put over to the next meeting discussion of purchase or condemnation of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way in east Corte Madera.

SEWERS — Meeting as the board of Sanitary District No. Two, council members approved a pump which will serve 14 new homes to be built in the Hidden Valley area and could be used by 21 present houses in the area which now have septic tanks. The developer, Estes and Roemer, is to pay the $26,000 cost of the pump.

ANNEXATION — Approved the annexation of Madera del Presidio annexation area to Sanitary District No. Two.

Three Hurt In Melee At Nightclub

A melee that erupted at the Lion's Share in San Anselmo about 1 a.m. today left three young men injured and puzzled police trying to figure which of the combatants, if any, should be charged.

Police were called to the rock nightclub because of a report of cars being vandalized in the parking lot. When three officers arrived, they saw a crowd around the entrance, heard the sound of breaking glass and loud shouts.

Next they spotted a person later identified as James W. Mueller, 20, of no fixed address, running away from the group with several persons chasing him.

Among them was Anthony L. Santos, 19, of 412 Hickory Lane, Terra Lindan who had blood running down his face, police said, and was shouting "That guy just hit me with a bottle."

A short distance from the nightclub, police said that Santos, apparently thinking he had caught up with Mueller, swung on another young man, Christopher B. Clark, 22, of 523 Fourth Street, San Rafael, who sank to the ground unconscious.

Police handcuffed Santos, they said, because he wanted to continue the fight and eventually Clark, who also was reportedly "very combative" when he regained consciousness, joined him in the patrol car.

Santos was treated at Marin General Hospital for facial cuts and Clark for a cut upper lip.

Mueller, who was not to be found immediately after the brawl, showed up this morning in Police Chief Raymond Buchignani's office, sporting a black eye and saying that Santos started the fight.

Five Youths Injured In Flipped Car

Five Marin County teen-agers were injured Saturday after a car they were riding on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard flipped onto its left side.

John O. York, 19, of 473 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, was driving east on the boulevard, about one-half-mile west of Camino Del Mar, when he lost control of the car, according to California Highway Patrol reports yesterday.

Five of the six persons in the car were injured, but, all refused medical aid.

In addition to York, the injured were Kathy R. Coffey, 17, of 18A Second Street, Sausalito; Tina R. Firth, 14, of 221 Madrone Avenue, Larkspur; Thomas Cookson, 17, of 25 Cedar Avenue, Larkspur; and Thomas Tully, 18, 109 Redwood Avenue, Corte Madera.

Woman, Child Hurt As Car Hits Tree

A Petaluma woman and child were injured Saturday at 8:05 a.m. when their car struck a tree on Highway 101 at Rohnert Park.

Mary E. Mannix, 23, of 1855 Petaluma Hill Road, and Debra Ann Mannix, 5, of 220 Fair Street, were treated at Community Hospital of Sonoma County for head cuts. Police said the car skidded on a soft shoulder and struck a tree.

18th Century Farce Slated

"The Servants of Two Masters," an 18th Century farce by Carlos Goldoni, will be presented by the Sonoma State College drama workshop May 11, 12 and 13 at 8 p.m. outdoors on the Stevenson Hall Mall.

Robin Jackson will direct the play which incorporates slapstick comedy, pantomime and improvisation. The play involves frustrated lovers, pedantic merchants and lawyers.

The cast includes Beth Sipple, Fred Barnett, Jean Simmons, Thomas Johnson, Elmo Greenwood, Peter Higbee, Nancee Hinman, Bruce Eaton, Duane Solem, Rachel Schiller and George Sanchez.

'NO PROBLEMS. . .'

She's Marin's Only Black Real Estate Saleswoman

(Independent-Journal photo)

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Tommie Scott, the only black real estate saleswoman in Marin, could have allowed being black to change her plans for a career in her chosen field, but she didn't.

Armed with an associate in science degree in real estate from the College of Marin and plenty of confidence, she chose to meet that problem head-on and conquer all obstacles. But she has found none since she started work in the Mill Valley office of the Hickok Co.

"Many of my friends thought I should try working in Richmond or San Francisco," she said with a broad smile, "but why should I? Five of my six kids were born in Marin, grew up and went to schools here. I have lived in Marin City 17 years, and I didn't want to move. I wanted to make it here, and I know I can.

"I have found the real estate people very warm and friendly, and so far I have had no problems with clients."

TOMMIE SCOTT doesn't believe it takes some sort of personal magic to sell real estate.

"You have to be able to communicate with people," she said, "but a house actually sells itself if you can picture what a client wants. They don't always want what they say they want, but they give hints in conversation. Then all you have to do is find the right house."

Houses have personalities like people, she said.

"Some are cold and sterile and some are warm and friendly." Houses have to be matched with the people, she added.

If all this sounds as though it has been as easy as sliding down a slick hill, it was not.

It has been a struggle for the 57-year-old mother of six who had her first child after 10 years of marriage.

TODAY, PHILLIP, the oldest, lives in Marin City but not at home with her. All the others, reared since she was separated from her husband some years ago, still live at home.

They are Calvin, 24, a poet; Barbara Ann, 20, a College of Marin student; Landy, 19, a part-time bus driver for the Economic Opportunity Council; Trudy, 16, a Tamalpais High School student; and Charles Edward, 8, a student at Bayside School in Sausalito.

"One time when I was taking 14 units at the college and working 15 hours a week in the work-study program besides keeping things up at home, I thought I wasn't going to make it," she admitted.

Born in Canton, Miss., Tommie Scott went through elementary and high school in St. Louis before she married and came to Vallejo in 1947 when her husband was stationed at Hamilton Air Force Base.

For many years she was "just a housewife," and after she was separated from her husband she worked eight or nine years in a small restaurant near Mill Valley.

"Then I decided to go back to schoo," she said, "because I had always wanted to get more education. "I started by taking math and speed reading in adult education classes at night at Tamalpais High School, then took English, business management and business mathematics at the College of Marin.

"I WORK very well with children — so they thought I should be a teacher, and general education was my major. Being a teacher was everyone's idea but mine, because I felt that by the time I completed all the requirements for teaching I would be ready for a pension.

"When I was within six units of having the required 60 units I changed my major to real estate."

Tommie Scott said she believes real estate is an especially good field for a woman because she thinks women know more about houses than men — it offers flexible hours that are helpful in a family situation — and there is not so much age discrimination in hiring as in other fields.

In February Mrs. Scott became the first graduate of the intern program sponsored by the Marin County Board of Realtors. She had worked as an intern with Stewart Associates in Corte Madera and Lucas Valley Properties in Terra Linda, then returned to the College of Marin to complete requirements for her degree last June.

She then attended Lumbleau Real Estate School in San Rafael to prepare for the examination given by the state Department of Real Estate. She passed that in August.

SINCE RECEIVING her license she has been working with Hiciok Co. since October and now is a member of the Marin County Real Estate Board.

Despite all these demands on her time Tommie Scott managed to become involved in community activities.

She was a member of the Human Rights Commission before she went back to school and organized a club about five years ago to provide recreation for young people of Marin City. This is the Marin City Mothers Club, and she is currently its president.

She is interested in astrology as a hobby, but said what she really enjoys is her work.

"I meet a lot of people and have a lot of fun," she said.

Women As Lawyers: Into Business, Criminal Fields

By MARY KELLY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — Women lawyers are moving ahead — and fast — according to a new Columbia University report.

Many are moving the female lawyer's image out of the family courtroom and into the fields of corporate business and tax work. Some are even breaking ground in criminal law.

The Columbia study stated that women in the university's two upper classes of law students are finding it easier than the men to get jobs. But this trend, the report says, is more typical of New York than other places.

"In New York, barriers to enter into the profession are fast breaking down," said Howard F. Maltby, Columbia Law School's placement officer. "Women are faring very well in their quest for jobs. Over 75 per cent of the women members of the graduating class now have jobs, compared with 66 per cent of the class as a whole."

For the first time in history," he said in an interview, "women won the three prizes most difficult to attain — the Kent Scholarship honorary awards.

WHILE THE progress some women have made in getting jobs is undeniable, he said the unknown factor at this point is whether women will be treated on an equal basis with men "in terms of allocation of work and promotion."

Mary B. Tarcher, assistant attorney in chief at the Legal Aid Society, said there are noticeable numbers of women going into criminal law practice.

"They are ready to go into areas to which they were not previously attracted," she noted. "Women lawyers have often been known to keep their cool better than do some of the male attorneys. The expertise of women shows up in their objectivity."

A society spokesman said the number of women lawyers in the organization has steadily increased. At last unofficial count about 20 per cent of the lawyers serving the organization were women, it said.

NEARLY 70 per cent of the women now in second year at law school, who still have 1½ years to go, already have found jobs. This compares with 57 per cent of the class as a whole finding jobs.

But while the New York job market expands, it is "still fairly sluggish in other major metropolitan areas," the Columbia report stated. "Students who want to move away from New York are experiencing difficulty."

Throw The Cake In His Face And Wipe Crumb Off Your List

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

This guy led two girls on for almost a year before one of them (me!) found out he was engaged to the other, while promising number one (me) his ring.

While I was away, he was true blue to "Sally" (let's call her). When Sally left town, he was at my house nearly every night. When we were both available, he juggled us neatly between different nights or different hours of the same day. Boy, were we dumb!

Well, I found out something else, too. He's a draft dodger, and says he'll leave for Canada if things get too hot for him.

Should I warm things up a little by informing Uncle Sam that he hasn't signed up? At least he'd be out two trusting girl friends if he had to suddenly leave town. — LAST LAUGH

DEAR L. L.

Revenge gets you nowhere. Tell him he can't have his cake and eat it too, then throw it in his face and wipe off the crumb. You'll do better without him, and you'll feel better in the long run, not turning informer. — SUE

DEAR L.:

Agreed. Uncle Sam is quite capable of doing his own sleuthing. This shifty Casanova won't go undetected long, so stay out of his life — unless you'd do him one last favor and remind him of the penalties awaiting draft dodgers. — HELEN

DEAR RAP:

About the proposed legalization of pot: We are at a point today where thousands of people are dying from alcohol poisoning, many thousands more face lung cancer and heart disease resulting from the cigarette habit. Our fish are loaded with mercury and our beef, poultry and vegetables are saturated with insecticides.

So far, there appears to be no evidence that marijuana is addictive and likewise there is no indication it has any nutritional value or other benefits.

BUT — the intake is through smoking and any form of smoke is harmful, from health and pollution standpoints.

It should not be a question of law. Instead, people should be made aware that pot is only another form of pollutant. If the young remain true to their "save the earth" standards, they won't jump on the legal pot bandwagon. In fact, they'll voluntarily stop adding more smoke to the overladen air! — JACK W.

DEAR JACK:

Good point. Sadly enough, however, "polluters" (in this instance, smokers) hardly ever think of themselves as the culprits. It's always that other belching smokestack over there! — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR RAP:

One last word about co-ed dorms. I'm sorry our college-daughter moved out of one! In her junior year she and three other girls took an off-campus apartment. She had a rough time breaking her part of the lease when boys overran the place, and she was consigned to the sofa when her roommate took in a male mate. Studying was out — partying (and clean-up detail later) was in. So she moved to another co-op arrangement which turned out just as badly.

All of these young people were basically good and decent, but they were out on their own and, regardless of the wholesome childhood they had had, some wanted sex and others preferred to wait. I'm sure it's the same in co-ed dorms, but at least there, those who choose "waiting" can do so undisturbed.

Our kid wishes she'd stayed put in the dorm. And that's the truth. — A MOTHER

DOLLAR-PINCHING — Designer David Hicks knows how to save a buck. Or a pound. He revamped his son's attic bedroom by applying inexpensive bed sheet fabric to walls and ceilings. Then he designed a wood frame, covered it with foam and fabric and turned an ordinary bed into a mock sofa.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

Inexpensive Way To Make Attic Bedroom Stand Out

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
General Features Corp.

The professional designers are the first to appreciate an economical product or money-saving idea. And British designer David Hicks is no exception.

Hicks's young son inherited a dormer room in their English countryside house. The ceiling had a series of jogs, and while there was a fireplace, the room lacked interest.

So instead of going the routine way for a boy's room and turning the space into a bed-playroom, Hicks decided to furnish the attic room as though it were a cozy sitting room.

He took the existing boxspring and mattress and framed it on three sides with wood. Foam rubber padding was added to the frame and then a corduroy upholstery fabric was used to cover both frame and sleep-surface.

The finished frame was nailed to the wall for extra support, but the bed itself can be moved for easy making.

Another economical trick was the use of bed linens for curtains, wall and ceiling covers. Applying the fabric as though it were a wall covering, Hicks used Bengal Stripe, a multicolored pattern. The stripes are handled vertically on all walls. They meet in a mitered cut on the ceiling. The effect is that of a tent top at the circus.

Prints of old automobile models were framed and hung above the mantel and some unusual leather and carved animal toys and mini-cars sit around the room. There also is a television set and chairs for reading and slouching.

The color scheme is muted brown, bone and blue, and a geometric patterned sheet and pillowcase in shades of bone and brown was chosen for the bed.

The total investment was less than $100 but the result was most satisfactory. Later, another reclaimed chair was covered in a bright blue felt and new carpeting was added.

Women Block Man In Job Hunt

BAY CITY, Mich. — Is the "mom image" important in kindergarten? Andrew Kochany found out that it was — to many women teachers who regard kindergarten rooms as their long sacrosanct domain.

Kochany, a 240-pounder, was turned down by several schools because women teachers objected before he was accepted at Hampton School as a trainee. Reverse chauvinistic action, he called it.

"Sex doesn't make that much difference in teaching," says his supervising teacher, Cathermae Waldron. "We're a teacher image, not a mom or dad image. The kids have enough mother image at home for their first five years, and they never forget."

Kochany gets help with his school problems at home: He and his wife have children age seven, four and six months. (Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

New P-TA President Chosen

Mrs. John A. Thomson, new president of the Tamalpais High School Parent-Teacher Association, is looking forward to her term of office as "the most challenging job I have taken on for the past 18 years I have lived in Mill Valley."

She said, "Technological advances and the population explosion have resulted in life having a different meaning and purpose, and life in Mill Valley itself has changed so much that our institutions, including schools, are far behind our living and thinking."

Mrs. Thomson said next fall Tamalpais High School will ask the community to identify its expectations in planning for changes in the school because success depends on the amount of student, parent and community involvement. Students already have full representation on the P-TA board, she said.

"It will be my aim to have the P-TA have but one single purpose in the next school year —to help every Tam High family and many others in the community become involved in planning changes."

In the past 16 years Mrs. Thomson has served two years as Old Mill School P-TA president and two years as president of the Mill Valley P-TA Council and has also been a member of several elementary school and high school advisory committees. For the past three years she has written a monthly newsletter for parents, "The Whole Tam Hi Family" and is presently on the Tamalpais High School Task Force for Educational Planning.

A third generation Californian born in Oakland, Pat Thomson received a B.A. degree from the University of California and was an office manager at Shell Development Co. for 10 years before marrying and coming to Mill Valley to live.

She and her husband, an investment salesman with F. I. Du Pont-Glore Forgan, who is a former Tamalpais High School P-TA president, have four sons. John and Jim are now in universities and Frank and Lewis are students at Tamalpais High School.

Mrs. Thomson is a member of the Mill Valley Tennis Club and Mill Valley Branch of the American Association of University Women and the Commonwealth Club of San Francisco. She enjoys gardening and playing tennis in her spare time.

Other new P-TA officers are Mmes. Andrew Kozak, first vice president; Charles Krekorian, second vice president; Russell Wallace, recording secretary; Raymond Gergus, corresponding secretary; Lowell Jennings, treasurer; Richard Burns, historian; and Michael Praszker, parliamentarian.

Mayor To Share On Appointments

Jean S. Barnard last night relinquished for the time being one of her few powers as mayor of Mill Valley: the power of appointment.

Recently-elected councilman Gerald J. Hood proposed that the mayor share her power to appoint all members of city boards and commissions with the other members of the city council.

Such a move, Hood suggested, "would be a step towards democracy." All councilmen should have the right to nominate members of boards and commissions, he said, with a majority of three councilmen required for all appointments.

This procedure is used by the board of supervisors, in filling vacancies on boards and commissions, he said.

Mrs. Barnard replied, "I suppose I would welcome not having to make all these decisions single-handedly."

She then proposed that the procedure be given a trial run before the city ordinance is formally amended.

Hood urged the council to amend the city's municipal code but it was finally decided to open the nominating procedure on an experimental basis.

Summing up the new policy, Mrs. Barnard said, "The council will make the nominations by majority rule, but to stay within the law, I will announce the decisions."

Activities Banned At Small Boat Harbor

The Mill Valley City Council last night prohibited further use of the city's polluted small boat harbor for boating, swimming or body contact sports.

The ban followed receipt of a letter dated April 14 from the Marin County Department of Health Services which stated that, "the waters of the harbor are not suitable for body contact sports and/or recreational activities of any kind . . . and must be held in abeyance until such time as clearance is received from the Regional Quality Control Board."

The council's decision was less stringent than a recommendation from the city's parks and recreation commission to ban not only use of the harbor but the land adjacent to it as well. Don Dimitratos, city parks and recreation director, said the commission felt that the city's liability would be safeguarded only if the ban extended to the boat storage area bordering the unhealthy water.

City Atty. Leland H. Jordan disagreed: "The fact that we allow people to use our boat storage area does not mean we are inviting them to use our city's water. I doubt we would be liable."

The council then unanimously banned use of the water while allowing continued use of the adjoining land for boat storage, boating classes and other recreational activities.

The council also committed itself to hasten construction of a new fire station and asked the planning commission to study possible sites and established a committee to screen architects and study cooperation with the Alto Fire Department for better fire protection in Mill Valley.

Mention of cooperation between the Alto and Mill Valley fire departments brought one angry response from the audience.

"The people indicated they want a new fire station in Mill Valley," said a man from the rear of the sparsely filled chamber. "Not cooperation with the Alto Fire Department."

Mayor Jean S. Bernard, however, expressed hope that preparation could progress. Within four weeks, she said, the planning commission should select the site.

The Mill Valley City Council Also:

Sponsored and managed by the Marin Symphony Association, the Marin Youth Orchestra is composed of the most talented instrumentalists in Marin High Schools and elementary schools.

Mill Valley Supports Regional Park Plan

Creation of a countywide regional park and open space district was endorsed last night by the Mill Valley City Council.

Council members agreed they were all for open space and unanimously endorsed the proposal for a new taxing district to buy and maintain a system of beaches, trails, natural areas and open spaces.

After hearing a presentation by Virgina B. Gerhart, a member of People for Parks and Open Space, the council approved the proposal.

Moments later, council members were presented with another request for their endorsement plan to preserve open space closer to home. This time, the proposal involved three cities — rather than the whole county — and was designed to save the North Ridge area of Mill Valley, Larkspur and Corte Madera. (Corte Madera City Council last night set a joint meeting of the three city councils for May 22 to discuss the plan.)

Plans for preserving the area date back to early 1971, when the city managers of the three cities were instructed to get together and formulate plans to retain the North Ridge.

Having endorsed the concept of a countywide open space district moments earlier, the council was not anxious to muddy the waters with an additional endorsement of an overlapping district.

After expressing his concern for the county's dwindling open space, Councilman Robert E. Capron said, "I'm fearful that if we proceed with a less than countywide district, rather than concentrate on a countywide district, we could end up with two districts. That means residents in the North Ridge district would be taxed twice."

The council postponed its decision on the smaller North Ridge district until it could meet with the Larkspur and Corte Madera city councils as well as the board of supervisors.

'Anxious Ape's Dilemma' To Be Topic Of Talk

"Choice: The Anxious Ape's Dilemma" will be the topic of an address to be given to educators May 10 by Dan Moore, director of educational programs for the Los Angeles Times-Mirror Co.

Moore's appearance, sponsored by the Tamalpais High School District and the Marin County Superintendent of Schools Office, will be at 6:30 p.m. at the San Geronimo Golf Club.

Moore for 12 years was a teacher, vice principal and social studies consultant in Los Angeles.

Scholarship Offered By Association

The Marin Symphony Association is offering another $500 memorial scholarship award which also gives the winner the opportunity to appear as soloist with the Marin Symphony Orchestra.

Joyce Conklin, chairman of the memorial scholarship committee, says that this is not a contest with the award granted to the applicant judged most competent. An award may not be given if no applicant is considered sufficiently advanced or talented. The audition committee includes the Marin Symphony Music Director Sandor Salgo, chairman, and Hugo Rinaldi, conductor of the Marin Youth Orchestra.

An applicant must be: not over 25 years of age as of Dec. 31 of this year, a resident of Marin or one whose family lives in Marin, an advanced musician capable of performing a major work from memory, able and intending to commence study under the scholarship grant within six months of receiving the award and not previously a winner of a Symphony Association Memorial Scholarship.

Application forms, which must be received on or before May 20, may be obtained from and should be returned to the Marin Symphony Association, P.O. Box 32, Ross. Selected applicants will be advised as to the time and place of auditions scheduled for May 27.

THE DAVIS TRIAL COVERAGE

A Reader Would Be Confused If He. . .

VARIED COVERAGE — Millions of words have been written about the trial of Angela Davis, with the stories coming out of San Jose representing a wide range of coverage that varies from the colorful prose of the underground and college papers to the factual accounts of the daily press.

By MARY LEYDECKER

The 12 people who make up the jury in the Angela Davis case will be asked simply, as in all criminal cases, to find her either guilty or innocent.

She and her supporters, however, through a barrage of words sent worldwide, have called the charges against her "political" rather than criminal and appear to want a guilty verdict for "the system" more than an innocent one for her.

She is not being tried for murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in connection with the death of Judge Harold J. Haley, they claim, because the state has reason to believe she was involved in a plot which ended in his death.

Rather, she and her supporters have maintained from the outset that the charges stem from a plot to "get Angela Davis" because she is a Communist and black and lastly, even because she is a woman.

If a newspaper reader somehow could have delivared to his doorstep each morning, all the papers in the world that are covering the case and if, by further chance, he was enough of a linguist to digest them all, he would undoubtedly become a very confused person.

If he started by reading the Russian papers, he would find virtually no mention that Miss Davis is charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy stemming from a shoot-out that took the lives of four people including the judge.

Rather, according to a correspondent in Moscow, Charlotte Saikowski, writing in the Christian Science Monitor, Miss Davis is portrayed as "a fighter for justice. . .her health failing and her lawful rights suppressed."

(The stories confuse even Russian readers, Miss Saikowski wrote, because they can't understand why, if American authorities have a case against Miss Davis, they haven't acted faster.)

"She is a black, educated female. She has charisma. She is a Communist. She is a leader. And she has a large number of white-middle-class Americans running scared."

That last is a quote from a paper published much closer to home than Moscow: The Daily Trojan, student newspaper at private and expensive University of Southern California. It goes on to say that the trial is truly a political one, rejecting statements by Albert W. Harris Jr., the prosecutor, who told a Trojan reporter that "the charges against Angela Davis have nothing to do with her politics."

The reporter, Tony Korody, then took considerable liberty with the facts, saying that "Miss Davis was on the FBI's 10-most-wanted list for more than a month prior to the Marin County shoot-out. . ." (Actually, she was placed on the list after a warrant had been issued for her, about a week after the shoot-out.)

The Berkeley Barb, which has not even asked to have a reporter accredited to cover the trial, also is a strong supporter of the Davis point of view.

In a recent issue, the Barb explained Miss Davis's reason for fleeing California after the shoot-out as "simple." She left, according to the Barb, "for the same reason Jonathan Jackson gave his life to free his brother and the other Soledad Brothers, even though they were innocent. . ."

An interesting sidelight on a dispute between the Tribe (another Berkeley radical paper) and Miss Davis's defense committee came to light in an exchange printed last month.

Although the Tribe said it affirmed "unqualified support for Angela Davis and all political prisoners," the paper was taken to task by Mark Allen, a member of the Davis Defense Committee for having "gone to new lengths to conceal your racism and virulent anti-Communism."

Allen was especially angry because the Tribe wrote that Miss Davis is similar to a "white, bourgeois liberal."

From the other side of Berkeley, at least politically, came a column in the Berkeley Gazette in which Mike Culbert wrote that "doubtless she (Miss Davis) will be acquitted because her right to happiness has been abridged. Or something."

Culbert happily quoted from a black newspaper, National Crusader, in which Miss Davis was described as a "rabble-rousing anarchist."

The Black Panther, also published in Berkeley, not surprisingly headlined a recent story on the Davis trial, "Can't Get No Satisfaction. . .Angela Goes To Trial with Non-Peer Jury."

On the other hand, the San Francisco Sun-Reporter journalist, writing for a paper which is mostly circulated to blacks, mainly presents a more dispassionate view of the case, weaving in his own views only occasionally.

Our fictional newspaper reader after perusing the prose of the Tribe, the Barb, Black Panther and the student papers, might find the typical American daily pretty dull stuff.

He would, however, find that such papers as the Washington Post, Chicago Sun-Times, Los Angeles Times, San Jose Mercury and News, the San Francisco papers, the Independent-Journal and all the myriad of dailies who rely on the two wire services have stories that are pretty similar.

The reporters for such newspapers write differently, of course, and often present details with varying emphasis.

However, with their factual accounts of the trial, they are not likely to be described as the People's World (a Communist weekly) recently was by Miss Davis as "a central vehicle in her defense." Neither are they a vehicle for her protection.

MAGEE REQUESTS CHANGE OF VENUE

Codefendant In Shoot-Out Cites Bad Publicity As Reason For Trial Transfer

San Quentin convict Ruchell Magee today finally joined his codefendant Angela Davis, whose trial is being heard in San Jose, in asking that his case be tried outside Marin County.

In one of the handwritten petitions with which he has peppered the courts for years, Magee said that bad publicity would prevent a fair trial in Marin.

This was the first request for a change of venue by Magee, who has filed many other motions.

In a short petition filed in Marin Superior Court today, Magee said simply that "judicial prejudice by judges and news media have been proven."

Visting Judge Leonard M. Linsburg of Tulare County set May 12 at 10 a.m. for hearing on Magee's request that his trial be transferred elsewhere. Magee, unlike Miss Davis who had requested San Francisco County for her trial but was assigned Santa Clara County, did not request a specific county.

May 22 has been set for his trial but attorneys have speculated that it cannot begin until after the Davis case is completed in San Jose since much of the evidence against Magee is tied up in her trial.

Magee, who earlier this year won the right of acting as his own cocounsel, had several times agreed to wait for his trial until after the former college instructor's is completed. He withdrew his waiver of a speedy trial, however, last month.

The two cases were split after Magee's legal maneuvers caused many delays.

Teachers In Petaluma Threaten Sanctions Over Cuts In Budget

By BONNIE BARD

Petaluma teachers — angry at budget cuts and inadequate programs — threatened yesterday to bring sanctions against the board of education, administration and community.

The Association of Petaluma Area Teachers, which represents approximately 340 of the 450-member instructional staff wrote a letter to the city board of education asking that a clear written statement of educational priorities be issued.

An ad hoc committee to be led by Paul Lyon of Rancho Cotate High School was directed to investigate if teachers have enough grounds to bring sanctions against the district.

The actions were taken at a meeting of the association governing board at Rancho Cotate High.

If sanctions are approved, the district could be placed on a statewide and national "blacklist." Teachers currently employed would be encouraged to seek jobs elsewhere and other teachers would be urged not to accept jobs in Petaluma schools.

A sanction against the community would mean that business and industry leaders throughout the state would be informed of educational conditions and urged not to locate in Petaluma.

Budget cuts and the failure of tax rate increase elections seemed to be the basic grievances of the teachers. "Teachers have found it increasingly necessary to put substantial amounts of their own money into their programs in order to provide the quality of education students deserve," the group said in its letter to the school board.

"Yet in spite of the contributions of individual faculty members, our present programs have been inferior to those of neighboring districts. The teachers of this district are unconditionally opposed to plans which will further weaken and deprive the educational programs."

At yesterday's meeting representatives from McKinley and Cherry Valley schools cast the lone dissenting votes against the sanctions study. Thirty votes were cast in approval.

Lyon said, "Some teachers have the feeling the school board and administration have been less than wholehearted in tax election efforts."

Some school representatives said their faculties believed that there are too many administrators in the main office and too many cut backs on the local school level.

In an effort to live within a reduced budget, the school board has reduced teaching positions to save money and has said it will close grant school and put all other elementary schools on double sessions as economy moves.

Craig said the sanction study committee would return with its report at a special meeting May 15 at 4 p.m. at Rancho Cotate High. If the association approves the sanctions, it will ask the California Teachers Association and the National Education Association to endorse the steps.

Metzger Counsel Claims Search Paper Obtained Through Perjury

Taking a new tack in their efforts to suppress evidence of drug law violations, lawyers for attorney Michael H. Metzger of Sausalito argued in Marin Superior Court yesterday the search warrant used was illegal becaule it was obtained through perjury.

Agents and an informer "committed a crime: conspiracy to commit perjury," attorney William O. Weissich told the court.

Perjury has been bandied about since Metzger was arrested in December 1970, but the court effort is the first time it has been used as a defense.

A previous motion to suppress evidence on grounds Alfred Teixeira, a Marin county narcotics agent; Garrett Van Raam, a state agent, and Jerrold N. McDonald, their informer, used trickery to obtain evidence for a warrant was granted by a Marin judge, but the state Court of Appeal overturned the ruling in December.

"Mr. Metzger was framed from start to finish," Patrick Hallinan, the second Metzger attorney, charged in his opening statement to Judge Thomas F. Keating. He said Metzger wasn't even home when he allegedly smoked a marijuana cigarette in front of McDonald the day before his arrest.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino called the allegations of perjury and frameup a "red herring defense."

Hallinan claimed that Van Raam came to Marin with McDonald on Dec. 3, 1970, a day after Metzger had successfully won an order forcing the agent to take a lie detector test in a South San Francisco Drug case. They came to arrange the arrest, he said.

McDonald went to Metzger's home two days later wired for sound under the guise of retaining the attorney to represent him and later claimed Metzger had smoked marijuana in his presence.

The next day, armed with a warrant, agents raided the home and allegedly seized LSD, cocaine, marijuana, hashish and cocaine from a hidden floor safe in the garage.

Metzger is charged with felony possession of all the drugs and a tear gas weapon found in another part of the house.

Four days after Metzger's arrest, charges against McDonald, stemming from the July 1970 raid on a gunladen converted subchaser in Tiburon Harbor, were dropped.

Hallinan said he intends to prove that McDonald didn't go to the house as claimed and in fact was with Teixeira at the time, but Teixeira insisted during testimony yesterday that he had dropped off McDonald near the Metzger home and listened in the car to the voices coming over the hiden transmitter.

However, Hallinan insisted Metzger's arrest was the result of "bitter, bitter feelings between Mr. Metzger and various agents."

Metzger is a former assistant U.S. Attorney and assistant district attorney of New York who has made a reputation defending persons accused of drug law violations.

Zunino said the motive was irrelevant.

The hearing is expected to run the rest of the week. Van Raam was to testify today.

Damage was estimated at about $1,300 to the windows and about $200 to the sign, officers said. The shooting occurred Thursday night or Friday morning.

East's Week Jump Overcall Gives Clue To Best Red Suit

It isn't generally recognized that Machiavelli was an excellent bridge player. "A man's wisdom is most conspicuous where he is able to distinguish among dangers and make choice of the least," he wrote. I can't swear that he used today's hand as an example, but he probably had something of the sort in mind.

LOW SPADE

West opens the six of spades, East puts up the king, and you win with the ace. You can now expect to win two tricks in each suit. Where will you seek the ninth trick?

Entries to your own hand are so scarce that you should forget about spades and clubs. You must plan to develop one extra trick in either hearts or diamonds.

PICK RED SUIT

You can pick either red suit if it breaks 4-2 or 3-3. The trouble is that one of the red suits may break 5-1. If you happen to start that suit first, it will then be too late to switch to the other suit. Which red suit will break badly? Machiavelli could have told you.

Your best chance is to start with the diamonds instead of the hearts. At the second trick you duck a diamond. Back comes a club to dummy's ace, and you cash the top diamonds and give up a diamond. Now you have nine sure tricks.

HOW DO YOU KNOW?

How do you know which suit will break 5-1? East's weak jump overcall of two spades provides a valuable clue.

East is likely to be short in hearts, the suit mentioned immediately before his jump overcall. Hence the hearts may well break 5-1.

East is unlikely to have five diamonds to make up for his shortness in hearts. East should have a six-card spade suit. If he also has five diamonds, he would probably jump to three spades.

DAILY QUESTION

The opponents are vulnerable, and you are not. Partner bids one heart, and the next player bids two spades.

You hold:
♠ - A Q 9 4
♡ - 10 6
◇ - 8 3
♣ - K 6 4 3 2.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Double.

If your partner has a decent hand, you should collect the value of a game. Your hand should take four defensive tricks, and your partner should have at least two or three for his opening bid.

HER REASONING — Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for president, is attempting to persuade voters a woman has "the God-given capacity to guide this country."

SEEKS TOP JOB

Mrs. Chisholm Admits Her Role Is To Rock The Boat

By JULIA MALONE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

George Washington, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson ... Richard Nixon, Shirley Chisholm ... Who?

A woman, a former preschool teacher, and black, Shirley Chisholm just doesn't fit the old image of what a United States president ought to be. Nor is she seen as a likely occupant of the White House.

But that's the very reason the Democratic congresswoman from Brooklyn is stumping for the office. And even if the polls say she can't win, she has no intention now of backing out.

Recently on a campaign tour of Massachusetts for this state's April 25 primary, she stepped onto a platform in the city of Springfield. Looking at her mostly black audience through her businesslike steel-rimmed glasses and pointing her finger, she told them: "You sister — even though black and even though a woman — has the God-given capacity to guide this country."

So Mrs. Chisholm runs for president. And no matter who wins, she'll have delivered a message to many Americans that, as she put it in Boston, "You too can hope to aspire to the highest office in the land."

But Mrs. Chisholm has other messages as well. "I'm a fresh breath — not a Tweedledum or Tweedledee," she says. "I'm the only unique candidate in this race."

She tells her listeners: "You need some boat-rockers."

As Mrs. Chisholm surveys the field of her political opponents, she sums them up: "Warmed over, boiled over, and prepackaged."

Of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, she says: "He's had his day ... Now it's time for a new breed of men and women."

But people often ask her why she is any different from South Dakota's Sen. George McGovern. And such questioners are likely to hear the response: "I didn't know you were blind." For, to Mrs. Chisholm, the big difference is simple: She's black and a woman.

"We don't need a representative for women," she told a Springfield College gymnasium full of people. "We want a woman to run for office." And the same goes for blacks, Indians, and Spanish-speaking people, she continued: "We don't need representatives for these people. Why don't we have these people themselves?"

After the talk, Candidate Chisholm settled in the modest Dodge. "You know, George McGovern tries to tell me he represents women better than me." She turned full-face and snapped: "Who is he fooling?"

Shirley Chisholm's biggest foe, however, is not a candidate, but the feeling that Shirley Chisholm doesn't have a chance, so a vote for her is wasted. Her advice: "When somebody tells you 'Don't waste your vote on Shirley Chisholm,' you tell them, 'Listen, brother, I've been wasting my vote on people that look like you for years.' "

Still, no realistic person is expecting Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Chisholm to be the occupants of the White House in January; so Mrs. Chisholm's hopes are centered on the Democratic National Convention in July.

"They're going to have Shirley Chisholm to reckon with in Miami," promises the candidate. She says she is going to the convention to be a "voice for the forgotten people" — the poor, the women, and the nation's minority groups.

Ideally, she'd like to have enough delegates so that anyone who wants to make it over the top will have to bargain with the Chisholm camp.

Senator McGovern, she told this reporter, "is treating me with kid gloves. He thinks I'm going to go with him." But Mrs. Chisholm says she's going to the convention "hanging loose."

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Welfare Pay Awaits Ruling

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Controller's office has held up pay checks for 222 Welfare Department employes, including 32 new attorneys under question, until it gets a ruling concerning the legality of their jobs.

The action taken Monday coincided with a Democratic controled Senate committee's vote to cutback in the legal corps of the welfare department.

A spokesman for the controller's office said the checks were held up until the state Attorney General issues a ruling regarding "restrictive language" in the department's budget affecting the employes.

"The meaning of the language is now in dispute, and we're withholding the checks until the Attorney General gives us an opinion," the spokesman said.

On a series of votes that often crossed party lines, the Senate Finance committee also refused to eliminate the department's anti-fraud office, agreed to transfer welfare appeal hearing officers and shift day care services for welfare children to the Department of Education.

Although the committee's cuts into the welfare agency were deep, they were generally not as severe as those contained in the Assembly's version of the budget bill.

The department currently has an authorized staff of approximately 10 lawyers, most of them added during the past two years. The committee on a party-line vote agreed to transfer six to the attorney general's office and allow the department to keep four as "in house counsel."

Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, chairman of a budget subcommittee which recommended the cuts, charged that the department under director Robert Carleson is consistently violating the state's new Welfare Reform Law and is costing taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars to defend itself against lawsuits.

'CLUNKER' LAW

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly has unanimously passed legislation making it illegal to abandon automobiles near rivers and streams.

The bill by Assemblyman Ray Johnson, R-Chico, was approved 63-0 Monday and sent to the Senate. It would make it unlawful to leave old cars and also automobile parts within 150 feet of the high water mark of the waters of the state.

The last registered owner of the "clunkers" are to be responsible for them being abandoned and would be liable for the cost of their removal.

POLLUTION BOND

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate has voted to authorize air pollution control districts to require that companies post compliance bonds when seeking relief from pollution control standards despite warnings that it would place an "onerous burden" on industry.

The measure by Sen. William Coombs, R-Rialto, was sent to the Assembly Monday on a 24-2 vote.

Under the bill, the bond would be subject to forfeiture, at the discretion of the district, if a company failed to comply with terms and conditions of the variance granted.

A hearing board would be appointed by a district to determine prior to granting the variance what the penalty would be in the event of forfeiture. It could not exceed $500,000.

OPPOSE PROP. 9

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Air Resources has adopted a resolution opposing Prop. 9, the Clean Environment initiative, on the June 6 primary ballot.

The board said Monday the measure "is not desirable as a measure to control air pollution." It said a number of "technical matters" would be frozen into law.

Among other things, the measure would ban new offshore drilling, clamp restrictions on the composition of gasoline and declare a five-year moratorium on construction of nuclear power plants.

BIGGER BOARDS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Local air pollution control boards would be broadened to include ordinary citizens and environmentalists under a measure approved by the Assembly Environmental Quality Committee.

The measure by Assemblyman W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, would expand the boards' membership from three to five persons.

Presently the boards consist of two lawyers and one engineer. Under the bill, the boards would be comprised of one lawyer, one engineer, one physician and two public members, one of whom must be a recognized conservationist.

INCLUDE RIVER

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Senate Natural Resources Committee has overriden the opposition of the San Joaquin Valley water establishment and voted to include the Kings River in a proposed California wild rivers system.

The committee Monday sent the bill by Sen. George Zenovich, D-Fresno, to the Finance Committee for further consideration. The vote was 6-2.

REFORMS OFFERED

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Republican leader Robert T. Monagan today proposed expanding the size of the California legislature by increasing the number of assemblymen from 80 to 86 and senators from 40 to 43.

The Tracy Republican leader offered a proposed amendment to the state consitution which would base the number of legislators on the size of California's congressional delegation.

Boundaries for the congressional districts would be the same as the Senate districts. Each congressional or senate district would be divided into two equal assembly districts. Each district would be adjusted after the census is revised each 10 years.

Meanwhile, another major proposed legislative change has cleared the Assembly Constitutional Amendments Committee on a 7-0 vote and sent to the Rules Committee.

The constitutional amendment by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, would permit the legislature to operate on a two-year session similar to Congress.

23 Policemen Are Arrested

NEW YORK (UPI)—Twenty-four plainclothes policemen were arrested early today and charged with shaking down gamblers in slum areas of Brooklyn.

Brooklyn District Attorney Eugene Gold and Deputy Police Commissioner William P. McCarthy said they would announce details of the arrests later. A spokesman for Gold's office said the policemen had already been indicted. The spokesman said one of the 24 policemen, identified as Lt. Fletcher Hueston, apparently shot and killed himself shortly before the indictments were handed up Monday.

Studies Show Women Athletes Have No Childbirth Problems

More girls and young women today participate in competitive sports. Many of them write to ask me whether it will spoil their chances of having children in the future.

To date there are no indications that a female athlete develops more pelvic disturbances and has more difficulty in childbirth than does the sedentary gal. In fact, the opposite is more likely to occur. Studies have shown that women who did calisthenics or regular exercises since childhood did not complain of backache following childbirth.

THE OBSTETRICAL records of many outstanding women athletes of the past have been reported in medical journals. A number of years ago a study was made on 107 German women at Heidelberg Gynecological clinic. The investigators concluded that the total duration of delivery was shorter in women athletes than in a control group. Their fertility ratio was normal.

In a similar study of 94 Finnish women athletes, no major disturbances were reported during pregnancy. The duration of labor was shorter and the contractions of the uterus were normal in character. There were fewer cesarean sections and less need for the use of forceps than in a comparable group of women who had not engaged in competitive sports. These findings refute the idea that in women athletes the pelvic muscles enlarge and crowd the birth canal.

EXERCISE has no adverse effect upon menstruation and physicians recommend it for women with dysmenorrhea (painful period). Menstruation does not impair athletic efficiency, as was demonstrated during the Olympic games at Helsinki in 1952. A number of outstanding athletes competed and none reported the slightest impairment. Some believed their performances were better than normal.

The esthetic aspects of being muscular can be improved if the female athlete behaves in a lady-like fashion. Fighting, swearing, and lack of sportsmanship are not admirable. Men are amused by these antics, but find such women unattractive.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

FLAT FEET

R. R. writes: My daughter suffers from fallen metatarsals. Is there any way she can strengthen the feet by exercise or other measures? Arch supports do not help at all.

REPLY

Fallen metatarsals is a fancy term for flat feet. Arch supports should help temporarily provided they are inserted in the right place. The easiest exercises are to pick up marbles with the toes or raise and lower the body by standing on the toes. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on fallen arches.

CAN'T SMELL

F.A. writes: Can sinus disease cause loss of the sense of smell?

REPLY

Yes. Any infection of the upper respiratory system involving the nose may be associated with trouble along this line. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on sinus disturbances.

'NERVOUS' CIRCLES

N. V. writes: Could nervousness be responsible for circles under the eyes?

REPLY

Not unless the nervousness interferes with sleep or is driving you to dring.

Dash To Freedom

DANNENBERG, Germany (UPI)—A 20-year old East German border guard fled across the Communist-mined demarcation line into West Germany Sunday, border police said today.

Students Realizing Plight Of The Indian On Southwest Visit

(Editor's note — This is the third of a planned series of reports to Independent-Journal readers by 10 students from the On Location School of Redwood High School, who are making a month-long journey through the Southwest to learn first hand about Indians, past and present. The travelers' plans were described in the I-J April 10.)

By TOM GUERIN

I am sitting on a park bench in Santa Fe Plaza, the center of commerce, and relaxing in the capital of New Mexico. Small shops and street vendors line three sides of the square selling leather goods, jewelry and pottery.

On the fourth side is the old building of parliament, the Palace of the Governors. It has been turned into a museum of Southwestern civilization. It begins with the first ancestors of the American Indian crossing the Bering Straits 8,000 years ago and ends for the time being with the first atomic bomb explosion in New Mexico and the continual attempts to preserve artifacts of past cultures.

The sun is hot and the atmosphere very friendly. People are spread out over the plaza reading papers, watching tourists, talking with friends or just enjoying the arid climate of this 7,000-foot-high plateau. However, beyond the confines of this peaceful setting lies a hell known only to a very few.

The Indians of this area, Navajo, Apache, Hopi, Zuni and the rest, once proud and powerful in their environment, are now but museum pieces, stripped of dominance and most of their pride.

At one time it wasn't this way. Living in communities from twenty to many thousands, the red man flourished on this continent. His homes consisted of cave dwellings, pueblos or teepees. He communicated freely with his neighbors and traded for any items essential to daily life.

Farming and ranching occupied most of the day for the father and his sons, whila the mother handled the culinary toils and worked on her hobbies which constituted a great portion of the bartering power. Life was simple and there was little to squabble over.

Then came our ancestors, clawing, scratching and tearing every ounce of land we could find from the natives. The situation began to come to a point of clash. Finally, Andrew Jackson, in an attempt to move the Indians west from the east coast and away from civilized man, made a proposition in 1825. He gave each Indian on the seaboard a plot of land in the Oaklahoma area. However, very few attempted the trek because of its distance, and the harsh climates along the way.

So in 1835, the army was assigned to move the Indians. During that year the journey was started and by the time it ended in the Southwest thousands of Indians had died. The path from the East is now known as the Trail of Tears, and it is said that if a small momento were left at the site of each red man's death the trail would be clearly defined, but it is not.

The Indians who did survive the hike came to rich agricultural lands and oil fields about which the government knew nothing. They called themselves the five civilized tribes; Cherokee, Creek, Seminole, Chickasaw and Choctaw. Most settled down until the western movement in the late 40's and 50's, but some sold their fields for money enough to be rich the rest of their lives.

However today the story has changed radically. The reservations on which the Indians are forced to live because of their financial status are in very sad shape. They are situated in the midst of desert and prairie land in New Mexico and Arizona. There are no green plants or animals and only about one in seven have a source of water.

The homes consist of a one-roomed structure built of stone, clay or spare wood. Within the walls lies but a dirt floor, a couple of windows and a stack of clothes. One family I visited consisted of twelve people, 10 children who all lived within the confines of a circular stone house with a diameter of 25 feet!

The sanitation situation is bad and lack of water or facilities adds to the depression of the typical Indian home. Temperatures often shoot above 100 degrees during the summer and no lake or stream exists to offer relief.

The Indian schooling system is as bad off as the living accomodations. Both the teaching and the facilities are way below standards and most Indians can't speak English clearly until they are 25 or 30 years old. Most Indians must travel great distances for school, so the attendance rate is very low also.

The Indian goes to town only for groceries or to go to the laundromat. Begging is taught to all the children and we have been panhandled wherever we've gone.

As a result of this trip, the full realization of the plight of the American Indian has really made an impression on us.

Preliminary Hearing Set In Murder Case

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Preliminary hearing on charges of murder, robbery and burglary for Charles Albert Harris of San Rafael has been set for 10 a.m., May 16 in Sacramento County Municipal Court.

Harris was arraigned yesterday in the same court, said Bartley Bleuel, deputy district attorney who is handling the case.

(The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in reporting that he was arraigned in Superior Court.)

Harris was arrested Friday at Center Point at 812 D Street, San Rafael, by Sacramento County deputy sheriffs and San Rafael police.

Harris is accused of the first degree murder of 84-year-old John Fitch Wilcox at his ranch home near Rio Vista on Feb. 27, 1970. Harris's arrest two years later came on a recent tip from an informer, according to Sacramento County deputy sheriffs.

Clean Air Blueprint On Agenda

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A controversial blueprint to clean up air pollution will be reviewed by Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors at 10 a.m. tomorrow at 939 Ellis Street.

The so-called "implementation plan" has been scored by citizen groups as inadequate, unenforceable, dishonest and based on inflated claims for past accomplishments. The plan was submitted to the federal government in December with virtually no review by district directors — who have been under continued pressure to reexamine the plan drafted by the staff.

Also on the agenda is a staff report on the feasibility of requiring air quality measuring instruments on smokestacks. The staff has resisted a blanket requirement for such checking, urging instead that the staff decide when to require it.

Proposition 9 on the June 6 ballot, the Environment Initiative, also is on the agenda. A majority of directors already have declared their opposition to it.

The budget and finance committee will meet first at 9:45 a.m. to receive a proposed budget for next fiscal year. The ad hoc committee on organizational structure will meet after the board session.

San Rafael High Plans Mock Convention May 11

A mock Democratic Party political convention will be held May 11 at San Rafael High School, with State Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, acting as keynote speaker, according to U.S. government teacher Virginia Franklin.

The convention, organized by the school's social studies department, will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the gymnasium. Temporary chairman will be Brian Hodes, and permanent chairman will be Mike Kamler. They will preside over the convention, Mrs. Franklin said.

Moscone, who will speak at 9:30 a.m., will be introduced by Rogert Kent of Kentfield, former Democratic state chairman. Folksinger Malvina Reynolds will perform during the morning, Mrs. Franklin said.

Nomination of a "president" is expected by 2 p.m., following a platform fight which will be role-played by states and delegates for various candidates, she said.

The public is invited to the convention, Mrs. Franklin said.

Parents Organize To Save Petaluma School

A group of Petaluma parents formally organized a Save Our Schools Committee last night with the goal of raising enough funds to prevent double sessions and school closings.

Elected officers were Dona L. Cook, president; Gwendolyn Adkins, vice president and fund raising chairman; Joyce Schmatovich, recording secretary; Dolly De Graffenreid and Mary Alice Horner, cotreasurers.

The group formed after the board of education announced that Grant School will be closed and all other elementary schools placed on double sessions in an economy move.

Mrs. Cook said the group hopes that the private fund drive will bring in enough so the school board can avoid double sessions and the closing of Grant School. Second on the priority list for funds was supplies and educational services followed by funds for special reading programs, partial busing and instrumental music programs.

The organization will be taking surveys to determine how much money may be raised and how it should be used.

Mrs. Cook said survey results will be discussed at a meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the school administration building.

Candidates On KTIM Program

Superior Court Judge Samuel Gardiner and his opponent Charles R. Best will participate at 9 a.m. Thursday in the second of a series of KTIM "Marin Sounding Board" political campaign programs.

Peter R. Arrigoni, Dr. William J. Filante and Barbara Boxer, candidates for the second supervisorial district, will take part in the May 11 show, and on Mary 18, candidates for the Third Supervisorial District will appear.

They are Michael Wornum, incumbent, and Samuel L. Banks Jr. On May 25, Gary T. Giacomini, James Dougan, Michael R. Peevey and Patricia Maginnis, candidates for the fourth supervisorial distirct, will be guests on the show.

Telephone questions will be accepted for the live broadcast of the show.

College Night At Drake High Set

The counseling staff at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo will present its ninth annual Spring College Night in the Drake Theater at 8 p.m. May 17.

The meeting is designed to provide specific information on college admission policies to high school juniors and the parents.

Novato Sets Priority For Acquisition

Novato parks and recreation commissioners recommended last night that Mount Burdell be given priority if a countywide district is formed to acquire open space.

Parks and recreation director Edward W. Adams said commissioners, responding to a request from the county for open space recommendations, decided to emphasize Mount Burdell, where development is planned.

Commissioners recommended obtaining as much Mount Burdell land "as is practical," Adams reported.

In a change of leadership, Walter W. Vater became commission chairman succeeding Renate Barton, who resigned recently, and John A. Trumbull was selected vice chairman, replacing Vater.

Adams reported that grading is completed at Pioneer Memorial Park and the forms for play equipment and poles for swing sets have been installed.

Parks and recreation attendance last month was 25,718, up 6,669 from April, 1971, with the increase due mainly to more park areas and the village fair, Adams said.

John Summerfield, the Marin County Athletic League's premier diver, won the league meet last Friday with dives like this, and will take his skills to Diablo Valley Junior College Saturday for the North Coast Section Division II meet. The 17-year-old senior from Novato High School has been league champion three consecutive years and earlier this season recorded a staggering total of 362.45 points in one meet. "Nobody around here has ever heard of a better local diver," said Novato coach Jim Settlage. (Independent-Journal photos by Alfred Arn)

Frightening Water Views In Southland

By RALPH CHATOIAN

A Southern California congressman said some things the other day that should make all Northern Californians a little sick to their stomachs.

Rep. Craig Hosmer (R-Long Beach) was the villain in a speech to the water committee of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. He was discussing the virtues of the Peripheral Canal, a project intended to divert water around the eastern edge of the Delta to pumping plants designed to speed the water to Southern California.

The part that really bristled the California Committee of Two Million (CCO2M), a group trying to save Northern California's few remaining wild rivers, was rather frightening. It came during Hosmer's speech in which he said that he had a deep affection for the northern part of the state.

"I like nothing better than a tall, cool glass of Northern California water, particularly if it comes out of a tap in Long Beach."

He referred to Mark Twain who once said that water taken in moderation cannot hurt anyone.

"And that is really all I ever had in mind — taking other people's water in moderation," he said. "First it was from the Upper Colorado and then the Lower and given half a chance, I would like to sneak off with some of the Eel, Klamath, and Columbia rivers as well."

Asks the CCO2M: "Is it any wonder why we consider the rivers to be under grave threat? Is it any wonder why our last free-flowing streams must be put out of bounds to greedy water profiteers? Is it any wonder why those who love the rivers demand strong legislation to protect the Eel, Trinity, Klamath and Smith rivers?

"Is there any doubt that SB 107, the Wild and Scenic Rivers bill, deserves immediate passage and enactment?"

Well, CCO2M, there's no doubt in my mind.

DICK HART, Redwood High School basketball coach, and Ray Dal Poggetto of Greenbrae, officer in the Far Western Conference officials association, will again go east for a series of basketball clinics for servicemen, sponsored by the Navy. Eastern stops by the pair will be Thailand, Hong Kong, Taipei, Tokyo and Hawaii. It will be the third year for Hart and Dal Poggetto so it's even better than going back for seconds. They'll leave June 9.

JIM HALM, one of Hart's former players at Redwood, will be going to Hawaii on a more permanent basis, that of freshman basketball coach at University of Hawaii in Honolulu. Halm played for Hart's teams of 1964 and '65 and then at College of Marin in 1966-67 followed by two years at U. of Hawaii.

THE SCOUTS nearly outnumbered the fans at last Saturday night's prep baseball game between Tamalpais and Drake. There were at least 21 known scouts, some from major league front offices, who felt like watching a ballgame at San Rafael's Albert Park. And all 21 of them were constantly ogling one young man. Yep, Clifford Hall, Tam's talented outfielder. He didn't let the scouts down, going two for three with two runs batted in, while Tam was losing to Drake, 18-8.

GORDON "THE TOE" Tovani is down to 76 in his countdown to one million kicks of a football. The zany San Rafael medical supply merchant is starting to get some offers on staging his epic boot. He reports an offer of $1,000 to kick his millionth over a Doggie Diner restaurant has come in, plus he has gotten a request from Bill Sobranes to kick it as a feature of the World Wrist Wrestling championships later this month in Petaluma. And, says, Tovani, "some guy is working on a $10,000 deal for me to kick the millionth over the fountains in front of Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas.

Tars Host Harriers Tomorrow

"We've been pointing towards this meet a long time," College of Marin track and field coach Tony Bailey said regarding tomorrow's Camino Norte Conference qualifying meet in Kentfield.

The Marin campus will also host the finals Saturday, 11 a.m.

"This is the first time we have hosted this meet," he added about the 4 p.m. confrontation tomorrow geared to sending qualifiers to the May 17 Northern California junior college track meet in Modesto.

He added, "It will also help select all-conference choices from a group of competitors who have already achieved a top standard. Unlike other conference meets, our league sets certain standards the athletes must meet before they get in, such as a 4:30 in the mile."

ATHLETES

Thus, the athletes journeying to Kentfield will find the competition keen in all qualifying events, including the 100, 220, and 440 yard dashes, 120 high hurdles, 400 intermediate hurdles, and the triple jump.

Bailey expects "some excellent times by our kids" in the qualifying battles. For examples, he listed Marinites Ken Blasingame and Dick Tierney.

BLASINGAME

"Blasingame has a 14.9 best in the 120 high hurdles. He is outstanding, but Blasingame will have his hands full with Ron Bolling of Contra Costa College (of San Pablo) and Steve Gibson of West Valley Iollege (of Campbell) who have both run 14.8s."

Tierney, Marin's ace sprinter, is the defending champion in the 100-yard dash but faces a stiff test from Solano College's Larry Manuel who sports a 9.6

BAILEY

Bailey was not as optimistic about his field events competitors but did list Bill La Haye in the shot put and long jumper

THURMOND'S CONTRACT ACTIVITIES

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nate Thurmond, a nine-year Golden State Warrior veteran, reportedly postponed a trip to England to complete contract negotiations.

The National Basketball Association center reportedly was the target of an American Basketball Association $2 million offer.

Neither Thurmond nor his financial advisor Bob Bartels will admit to current discussions. "Quite frankly," Bartels explained, "nothing has happened."

Blue To Sign Contract With A's; Giants Victimized By Strikeouts

Long-g-g Holdout To End In Boston For $63,000

BOSTON (UPI) —Vida Blue will bring one of sports' most stubborn and bizarre salary disputes to a peaceful end today when he signs an Oakland Athletic contract mediated and virtually dictated by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

The 23-year old Blue, the American League's Most Valuable Player and pitcher of the year in 1971, and Oakland clubowner Charles O. Finley revealed Monday they have reached an agreement believed to be for $63,000 for one year. Blue arrived in Boston late Monday night and is expected to suit up for the Athletics' game tonight with the Red Sox but probably won't be able to pitch for three weeks.

COMPROMISE

The $63,000 figure represents a compromise between Blue's demand for $92,500 and Finley's announced "final offer" of $50,000. It was agreed upon under pressure from Kuhn who announced late Monday that Blue would be "prepared to sign the contract."

Finley announced about two hours later in Chicago that Blue would sign his contract today and added, "I am extremely please that Vida Blue has reconsidered my offer made to him in Chicago last week and is coming to Boston to sign his contract and join the team.

'WELCOME'

"Needless to say Vida will be a wonderful addition to the A's and will be most welcome," Finley added. "And I say again tonight, peace."

Kuhn made his powerful role in the settlement clear when he emphasized Blue will sign a contract "on the terms which were worked out in Chicago last week and which the commissioner directed be held open by the Oakland club."

TENTATIVE

No announcement was made of the tentative agreement reached by Blue and Finley last Friday because Blue wanted to announce the pact as for a straight $63,000 salary and Finley wanted to call it a contract for a base pay of $50,000 plus $8,000 for a scholarship and a $5,000 bonus.

However, Robert Gerst, a Los Angeles attorney who advised Blue during his negotiations, said, "Vida is signing for a straight $63,000." Gerst also added, "If it wasn't for the commissioner we couldn't have done it."

BLUE

Blue, who was not classified as a rookie in 1971 because he pitched 39 innings for the Athletics in 1970, startled the baseball world with an unprecedented succession of high-strike, low-hit games and wound up the season with a 24-8 record that led Oakland to the Ameri-

Ali Mauls Chuvalo, Sets Quarry Fight

By JOE SARGIS

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)— Muhammad Ali says he is right on schedule for a return heavyweight title fight with champion Joe Frazier, and after the way he battered poor George Chuvalo into submission, who's to disagree.

The 30-year-old Ali quite subdued but once again at his best, showed Chuvalo a dance step or two for five rounds and then beat him to a pulp with stinging rights Monday night for his fifth straight victory on the comeback trail leading to another fight with Frazier late this summer.

SVELTE

Ali, scaling a svelte 217 1-2 pounds to Chuvalo's 221, beat the Canadian champ on a unanimous decision before only 8,800 in the Pacific Coliseum, but upwards of 50,000,000 it was estimated, saw the action on closed circuit television in the United States and Canada and 34 other countries.

Chuvalo, at best, won only the fourth and fifth rounds, as Ali was given the decision by all three ring officials. While Chuvalo was cut over the right eye and inside the mouth, Ali was unmarked, as usual, and was hardly breathing deeply at the end.

QUARRY

"I'm right where I want to be," said the former champion, "so now I'm going to step up my pace for Jerry Quarry. I'm going to meet him next month and I'm going to beat him good then I'll fight in Ireland (against Alvin Lewis) in July and that should put me in great shape for Frazier. He's the cat I'm after and this time it won't be the same as the last."

Chuvalo, who said he tried his best, agreed Ali should be a more formidable opponent for Frazier this time than he was last March when Joe outpointed Ali over 15 rounds.

'GREAT SHAPE'

"I think Ali is in great shape," said Chuvalo, "and the next time he meets Frazier he ought to do better. He hit me pretty good but my legs never got rubbery."

Chuvalo never has been knocked off his feet in 91 profesional fights, including Frazier. He probably is the toughest man in the heavyweight division these days but he simply takes too many punches to the head.

MIGHT QUIT

It had been suggested that Chuvalo might quit if he lost badly to Ali, but the Canadian king said he'll wait a while before making up his mind. Ali said Chuvalo should continue and in fact deserves to be ranked at least third in the division.

"He is a tough fighter," said Ali, "and I think he was better this time than the last." The two met six years ago in Toronto with Ali winning a 15-round decision

Power Trio Fans 11 Times; Mets Triumph, 7-4

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Now it's the "meat" of the San Francisco Giants batting order that has manager Charlie Fox climbing walls.

"Our third and fourth batters struck out seven times against the Mets. That's bound to hurt you," said a disconsolate Fox after the Giants dropped a 7-4 decision to the New York Metropolitans on a warm, sunny Monday afternoon.

He referred to Bobby Bonds, the No. 3 batter who fanned four straight times, twice with runners on base, and cleanup hitter Dave Kingman who whiffed three times and popped up meekly to short in the fourth after Tito Fuentes opened with a triple but was unable to score.

MADDOX

Rookie outfielder Garry Maddox, the No. 6 hitter, struck out four times.

However, three Giants belted home runs off righthander Tom Seaver who needed relief help over the final 2 1-3 innings from Tug McGraw before nailing down his fourth straight win without a loss.

Chris Speier drilled a two-run homer off Seaver, last year's strikeout and ERA king of the National League, in the sixth inning and Ken Henderson followed with a solo blast leading off the seventh.

Rookie Giants catcher Dave Rader hit the first pitch he ever saw from Seaver on a line over the rightfield fence in the third for the Giants' first run. It was Rader's first big-league blast.

SEAVER

Despite the rough handling, Seaver managed to strike out 12 Giant batters and walk only two over the first 6 2-3 innings. It was Seaver's first appearance at Candlestick since Aug. 31, 1969.

McGraw replaced Seaver after he had walked Alan Gallagher and pinchhitter Willie Mays following Henderson's homer. The Giants got only one hit off McGraw the rest of the way.

"The weather was lovely but it was the worst game I've had this season," said Seaver, a native of Fresno. "My legs got tired in the seventh inning and my control suddenly vanished.

MUSCLE TEAR

"I tore some muscle fibres in the calf of my leg about 10 days ago and haven't been able to run well since then. It still bothers me a little bit."

The Mets rallied for three runs in the seventh on five singles against relievers Jerry Johnson and Don McMahon for their winning margin.

"In the big leagues, a relief pitcher must have command and control," said Fox. "Johnson's arm is fine but he's not getting the ball where he wants

NHL Bruins Host Rangers Tonight

BOSTON (UPI)—The New York Rangers are beginning to wonder what they have to do to beat the Boston Bruins.

The Rangers haven't topped the Bruins since the first time the two clubs met this season—Oct. 10 in Boston. Since then, the Bruins have won six straight times, including a narrow 6-5 escape Sunday in the opening game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup championship series.

The two clubs meet here again tonight before moving to New York for games three and four on Thursday night and Sunday afternoon.

Oddly enough, the Rangers were anything but downhearted after Sunday's loss. They dwelled on the good points—their comeback from a 5-1 deficit to tie the game at 5-5 in the third period-rather than the bad.

"Whichever team wins this series," Ranger Captain Vic Hadfield said, "will now know that it beat one of the best teams in hockey. This will be a long, tough series."

And Emile Francis, coach and general manager of the Rangers, vows his club "will be back. we've not out of this yet."

Boston Coach Tom Johnson wasn't taking anything away from the Rangers Monday, but he felt his club "learned a lesson" by watching New York roar back.

Johnson said the Bruins will "just have to tighten up. We quit skating. We can't play like that against this club and expect to win again."

Johnson said the Bruins failed to give goalie Gerry Cheevers "the great protection" in the latter stages of the opening game. He said Eddie Johnston would be in the nets tonight. "That's the way we planned it." The Rangers lost veteran winger Ron Stewart for the duration of the series. He received a broken jaw in three places during the second period of Sunday's action when he was hit by Ace Bailey—the man who scored Boston's winning goal with 2:16 left in the game.

it. He probably just needs more work."

Fox plans to use Don Carrithers (1-1) against New York's Gary Gentry (1-1) in tonight's game at Candlestick Park. San Francisco's Steve Stone (0-1) will face Jon Matlack (2-0) in the series finale Wednesday afternoon.

HARRELSON

Big sticks for the Mets Monday were shortstop Bud Harrelson and leftfielder Cleon Jones.

Harrelson hit the third home run of his eight-year big league career off starter and loser John Cumberland, 0-3, in the third inning. Harrelson also sent home a Met run with a sacrifice fly in the fourth and scored twice himself.

Jones singled home New York's first run in the opening frame and singled in the Mets' sixth run in the seventh.

John Smith as "two men who could place high."

In the 880, Bailey touted Steve Silvey and Joe Kinn as two men "who have really been coming on of late.

In the distance events, the Marin Tars have the conference's top miler in Mike Arago. "But we won't run him in this; we'll run him in the three-mile event. We want our distance men to concentrate on one event, because, when you get in this type of meet, it is awful tough to run well in two events with such great competition," Bailey added.

Vian Collier will replace Arago in the mile. Bailey stated that "Collier is a good one, too. He has a 4:19.5 in the mile." Collier's main adversary will be Mike Schaecher of West Valley who owns a 4:15.1, only seven-tenths below Arago's standard.

With the likes of Collier, Arago, Blasingame and Tierney leading the way, it is not surprising Bailey concluded that "this is going to be some meet. We're ready for this one. We should be able to more than hold our own."

PREP OF THE WEEK

Billings' Value Looms High On Union Scale

By LEW CODDINGTON

It's a good thing for Drake High School's athletic budget that John Billings doesn't receive union scale. Saturday night, he would have to have received:

Base pay for an outfielder with two years' seniority;

Shift differential for playing at night;

Extra compensation for work performed out of classification as a pitcher; and

MERIT INCREASES

Billings hit a bases-loaded triple in the second inning to boost Drake on its way to an 18-8 victory over Tamalpais. He ended up with two hits in three trips, plus five innings pitched and avictory. For the week, he was four for seven, six runs scored, four driven in, and two extra-base hits, a home run and a triple.

In fact, he is the Marin County Athletic League's leader in homers, with two in eight games, as well as in doubles, with three. He is batting .387. As a pitcher, he is 2-2 with a 2.23 earned run average.

CONCENTRATE

"I really don't like to pitch that much," said the 5-foot-9, 170-pound blond senior. "I prefer the outfield. I like to concentrate on my hitting."

He was pressed into service as a pitcher by coach Dick Creighton. For one reason, Drake's mound staff was hit hard by graduation. For another, Billings doesn't pitch like a guy who doesn't like what he's doing. The first season he ever climbed atop the mound, he was 10-0. As a junior varsity hurler two springs ago, he was 9-1. As a freshman, he struck out 18 batters in a game. What would he do if he enjoyed it?

When he is not busy throwing the ball past opposing hitters, Billings bears a certain resemblence to his major league hero, Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

JOHN BILLINGS
Drake slugger

HITCH

"I have a hitch in my swing," he says straightforwardly. Among baseball people, hitches are about as welcome as bubonic plague. "I have quick wrists, though, and I can overcome it. Clemente has quick wrists, and so does Manny Sanguillen (another outstanding Pittsburgh hitter)."

Like Clemente, Billings is impatient at the plate. "I like to swing," he says. "The two walks I got Saturday night were my first two of the year." He bats leadoff this season, the first time he has. Past coaches have batted him third or fourth to utilize his power.

EXCEPTION

Ordinarily, he says pitching interferes with his hitting. "When I'm playing outfield, I usually get two hits a game. When I'm pitching, I get one or two. Saturday night was an exception."

Billings would like to play professional ball "if I'm good enough, but I want to go to college first." Presently, he is considering College of Marin, and says Tars coach Vic Petrushene is interested. "He wants me to pitch, too," Billings said resignedly.

MARINE BIOLOGY

Billings says he would major in marine biology in college, because "the sea hasn't been figured out yet — it's one of the most challenging things left to man right now." It's doubly challenging for Billings, who lives in Sleepy Hollow and does not boat or surf. "I plan to take up scuba diving this summer," he said.

He spends most of his spare time playing other sports, notably basketball. He doesn't enjoy watching baseball. "It's boring," he said. "It's exciting to play, but boring to watch. It's true — I may as well say it."

FOOTBALL

Billings played varsity football as a junior, starting at split end, but gave it up "to concentrate on baseball." Since then, he's had a series of minor disappointments. Two semi-pro opportunities, one in a winter league and one in a summer league, fell through. In addition, he had to sit out the last half of last prep season because of a broken left hand, after winning a starting berth in the outfield.

This year, though, nothing seems to be stopping him. He has one advantage over everybody else in the league: as a hitter, he doesn't have to face Drake pitcher Billings; as a pitcher, he doesn't have to face Drake hitter Billings.

"If I were facing myself, I'd know exactly what to throw to get me out. But, of course, I'm not saying."

Rodriguez Tops Casper In Playoff

DALLAS (UPI)—Juan Rodriguez's dream that he was going to beat Billy Casper in a playoff for the Byron Nelson Golf Classic Crown came true almost to the letter, but after it was all over the little Puerto Rican said he still couldn't believe "I won the w-h-o-l-e thing."

Before they teed off on No. 1 Monday, Chi Chi told Casper he had dreamed they would tie for the regulation lead at seven-under-par and that he was going to beat Casper on the first extra hole by knocking his ball "stiff to the pin" while Casper would be nine feet away.

In Rodriguez' dream they started the playoff on the par-3 13th hole, but in actuality they did deadlock at seven-under-par 273 and started the playoff on the 555-yard, par-5 15th hole. They both reached the green in three and Chi Chi's approach was indeed "stiff to the pin"—just four feet from the cup. Casper, however, was 20 feet away and missed his putt.

Rodriguez, who said he "knew all the time I was walking around looking at the putt that I was going to make it," sank his birdie putt that broke a four-year tournament drought and earned him $25,000.

Casper, who shot a final round 36-35—71 to Rodriguez' 35-35--70 over the 7,084-yard Preston Trail Golf Club layout, picked up a check for $14,300.

Chuck Thorpe, who barely made the cut with his 144 the first two days, closed out with a 65 and a 68 to take seventh place money of $4,000 with a 277. Dave Stockton, Miller Barber, Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf and John Schlee were at 278; Fred Marti, John Mahaffey and Dwight Nevil shared the 279 spot and Napa's Ron Cerrudo was alone at par 280, earning $2,000.

ABA Pacers Edge Stars In Playoffs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Neither division champion will be in the American Basketball Association playoff finals.

The Indiana Pacers made sure of that Monday night by upsetting the Utah Stars 117-113 in the final game of their best-of-seven series for the Western Division title. The Pacers had finished the regular season in second place, 13 games behind the Stars, the defending ABA champions.

Indiana now will meet the winner of Thursday night's game at Norfolk, Va., between the Virginia Squires and the New York Nets. The Nets, who knocked off Eastern Champion Kentucky in quarterfinal action, sent the series to a seventh game Monday night with a 146-136 victory over Virginia. The Squires finished second in the East, a game ahead of New York.

Indiana relied on a balanced scoring attacked led by Roger Brown to build up a fourth quarter lead and then hold off the Stars' rally. Brown had 27 points, Freddie Lewis hit 23 and Mel Daniels added 19.

Bob Leonard, the Pacers' coach, admitted that he was worried in the closing minutes when Zelmo Beaty and James Jones sparked the Stars' rally.

San Diego Celtics Rumor Squelched

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

BOSTON — The Boston Celtics must be the only vagabonds who have never left home.

Ownership of the National Basketball Association Atlantic Division champion now has changed hands nine times in the last eight years with Irving H. Levin, president of National General Corp. of Los Angeles, and his vice president and general counsel, Harold Lipton, being the latest to claim title to the team.

Levin and Lipton emerged from a week-long silence yesterday to announce they had signed an agreement to purchase the club, made a "substantial deposit" and "agreed wholeheartedly" that "the Celtics' basketball home is Boston."

Since an announcement was released on the sale of the Celtics to unnamed buyers, speculation had the team moving to San Diego.

sociation agreed yesterday to assume the financial obligations of the Memphis Pros until a new owner can be found, but turned down an offer from a Florida couple to purchase the club.

ABA commissioner Jack Dolph said the trustees voted unanimously to reject an offer from Joseph and Mamie Gregory of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

MARLBORO, MD. — The Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association will move to the Washington, D.C. suburb of Prince Georges County in the near future, the chairman of the Prince Georges County Council announced today.

The Bullets will take up residence in a proposed sports arena in suburban Largo, Md., about three miles from Washington, county council chairman Winfield Kelly said in a brief statement.

can League's Western Division title.

Blue, who won 17 of his first 20 decisions, was estimated to have attacted one of every 10 persons who paid their way into AL parks last season. He also brought baseball broad national publicity which was badly needed by the sports.

FIGURES

In addition to finishing the season with a 24-8 record, Blue struck out 300 batters in 312 innings, led the league with a 1.82 earned run average and pitched eight shutouts. His shutout total was one fewer than the league record for a left-hander pitcher held by Babe Ruth.

Blue, who earned $14,500 in salary in 1971, and Gerst originally asked for $115,000 but Finley stood firm at $50,000 even when Blue and Gerst said they would accept a figure of $92,500 and then one in the neighborhood of $60,000 to $70,000.

SALARIES

Blue's argument was that he should be paid immediately for his 1971 accomplishments while Finley took the traditional baseball stance that the salaries of stars should be escalated gradually over their careers.

The dispute took on its most bizarre aspect when Blue announced that he had taken a public relations position with a plumbing firm. Blue has since also accepted a role in a motion picture to be filmed this fall.

Raider Middle Linebacker Is A Free Agent

OAKLAND (UPI) —Middle linebacker Dan Conner of the Oakland Raiders today was one of 31 unsigned players listed by the National Football League as officially a free agent.

Conners said he talked to the Raiders last week and now he just wants to wait and see what happens. "I like the area, the team and my teammates, but my first loyality is to my family," he said.

Conners said that if another team offered him the kind of contract he wants he would "probably accept."

Pitching Woes For Pirates

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Pittsburgh Pirates may be kidding themselves but they claim they're not worried about Dave Giusti.

Giusti, who saved 30 games for the Pirates last year and added five victories in their drive to the world championship, was ineffective for the third time in the last nine days Monday night as the Pirates lost their sixth straight by a 9-8 margin to the surging Houston Astros.

With the score tied 7-7 in the ninth, Giusti was tagged for successive singles by Jim Wynn, Lee May and Bob Watson that cracked the tie. A Giusti wild pitch and a sacrifice fly by Tommy Helms rpoduced what proved to be9the winning run after the Pirates scored a run in the last of the ninth.

Houston is on a hot streak and the Astros pounded out 13 hits with Wynn and Cesar Cedeno collecting three hits. Jim Ray pitched two innings of one-run relief for the Astros and got the victory to boost his record to 4-0.

The only other action in the majors was on the west coast in the National League as New York topped San Francisco 7-4 and Philadelphia edged Los Angeles 2-1.

FISH AND GAME

It's Slow Fishing All Around Marin

By AL GIDDINGS

The trout season opener for Marin's streams and Novato's Stafford Lake opened with a thud. Things were slow indeed.

Along Papermill Creek through Taylor State Park only a few people showed. Wardens working the area checked only nine or so limits. There were no more than 20 cars along the entire stream route. Of course this made us all happy because we feel that almost the entire plants of yearling salmon and steelhead must have already gone to sea. This is what we hoped for as these fish were planted to rejuvenate the winter runs of adult salmon and steelhead.

MOST OF THE limits were taken by local kids who feel that a fish is a fish, no matter what. My wife, Mary, said she saw one little tyke with one six-inch fish, but he was the happiest kid in the world. The first limit I checked was taken by John Delana of Point Reyes, who is just following in his dad's foot steps. No large landlocked steelhead were taken, but I heard of one being spotted by Gary Giacomini of Woodacre. Out there, a big fish in the creek is still part of the town gossip. At Olema and Bolinas creeks we couldn't locate any anglers. At White House Pool, two anglers had three six-inch silver salmon that had been going to sea.

Stafford Lake was a bust. We got over there about 9 a.m. to check the area. We met Ron Stephens, the park superintendent, who had already put in the morning at the area. His report of "Not one fish checked!" was unbelievable. The reason? I don't know. Maybe it was the frosty morning keeping the warm water fishery still in the inactive state. Maybe it was those blustery winds of Friday. Lake Merced in San Francisco had some like problems even with their trout.

THIS WEEK Stafford Lake will be stocked with catchable trout for the first time. Other local waters to be stocked are Lagunitas, Bon Tempe, Phoenix reervoirs and Rodeo Lagoon. Lasl fall, 100,000 fingerlings were planted in Alpine and Nicasio reservoirs, and 50,000 in Kent. Some of these fish should show, but as yet we have not checked even one trout from Nicasio. Twenty-three people checked at Nicasio had nothing. There were about eight cars below Kent Dam; I keep getting reports of an occasional big fish being taken there.

THE STRIPED bass fishermen are also having their problems. From the Loch Lomond Bait Barge, word is that not a fish has come in this week, even though the regular champs are fishing whenever possible. Yep, even Sam Knoles and Ray Lenci aren't connecting. The winds have been wicked. Over at Buck's Landing, two sturgeon were reported checked in last Saturday. The last fish that I caught was a 31½-pound bass out by the pumphouse two weeks ago.

Say, wasn't that a whopper of a 405-pound sturgeon taken by William McNew from the Sacramento River near Verona. I've had some inquiring calls about sturgeon taking lures as word has it that this fish was caught on a rebel or a flatfish. I don't know of any sturgeon taking lures, but in this case, the flatfish, or whatever was used, supposedly had a filet of sardine also attached. This is a common practice when fishing for salmon in the Sacramento River. The filet is tied to the lure to make it more attractive by the scent it gives off. It would seem possible then that an anchored boat fishing such a lure along the bottom could have a sturgeon take the still bait. It would be interesting to know.

SALMON FISHING has also been slow. I noted about 70 boats last Saturday between Rocky Point and Muir Beach. The radios were humming as usual; the word was "small fish in that area" and "larger fish four miles east of the Farallones." With the spring winds here almost daily, check with the tackle shops at Sausalito for conditions.

In March, 19,627 salmon were logged by the bay area party boat fleet. Other fish logged were 433 lingcod, 289 stripers, 139 sturgeon and one halibut. At Bodega, 70 salmon were logged, and at Eureka only 13. I guess we are lucky at that.

PREP POWER IN SWIMMING

Terra Linda's Winning Program

By PAUL CANE

The championship varsity swimming teams produced year after year by Terra Linda High School don't appear out of nowhere.

For the third year in a row, Terra Linda High has taken the aquatic "Triple Crown" of varsity swimming and water polo, and Class B swimming.

This year, the varsity tied Redwood High for the championship with 9-1 won-lost marks.

The Class B team, under the direction of head coach Bob Pollitt and assistant Chuck Metz, not only serves as a breeding ground for future varsity stars, but provides a chance "for younger swimmers to be involved and to be a part of a team. That's an important feeling to have as a 14-year-old," Pollitt stressed.

Quality may not come solely out of quantity, but Pollitt sees a relationship between the number of athletes out for Trojan swimming, and the titles perennially taken by the Blue and Gold.

"We had more than 50 turn out for swimming this year," he noted. "Every spring for about a three-week period I really put on a campaign to get guys to come out. I put announcements in the school bulletin, in a swimming display case, and I really plaster the locker room with signs."

The result of this encouragement was 40 Class B swimmers this year.

"If we're going to have a swim team, we might as well have a lot of guys in it; it's so necessary to have a sense of identity, of belonging to a group when you're in high school, especially a freshman. Athletics should be for everybody, and I run my program toward that goal, not just for the select few."

Even on the "B" team, though, there are several that may go a long way toward placing at the North Coast Section level. Three of those swam varsity during the dual meet season for Terra Linda, and should lead the Trojans to "a top six team placing" at the NCS, Division meet, Saturday, 8:30 a.m.

Ken DeMont, Mark Wilson and Steve Crow each played a part in leading Terra Linda to a first place tie in varsity, but they are Class B swimmers by weight and/or age.

"One whole lane in each of our practices is devoted to beginning swimmers, those that are just learning to swim," Pollitt said. "And out of that group of starters has come some of our best "Bs" — Mike Martizen, Jim McNaught, and Tom Bollinger."

"We don't have a lot of stars," Pollitt conceded. "But we've got many, many good, solid swimmers that make our group of guys a real team."

San Ramon High School Campolindo High and Ygnacio Valley High of the East Bay are top contenders for the NCS Class B title, and Pollitt says he is unsure of whether his team can equal the second place finish of last year.

"I like working with the young kids," said Pollitt. "Maybe one of them will do something he's never done before; something like swim 50 yards of butterfly. When he sees he can do something he's worked for, he's got a smile on his face, and that encourages the coaches; that's why we have as much enthusiasm as our swimmers."

Petaluma Defeated

Host Petaluma High School hurdler Larry David set a new school record, but his teammates didn't fare as well, falling 96-40, to Napa in a North Bay League track and field meet yesterday.

David raced to a 14.9 in the 120-yard high hurdles to establish a new Petaluma mark.

Sohner Tree Divides Softball Twin Bill

Sohner Tree Service softballers began AAA Santa Rosa League play last night, splitting a doubleheader with two of the loops top clubs.

The Treemen from Marin notched a 3-1 victory over Santa Rosa's Mertle Chevron in the opener but then suffered a 6-0 setback to Greyview Farms of Petaluma in a game that may hurt Sohner more than the score might indicate.

Schultze homered in the sixth inning to account for Sohner's final run.

Veteran hurler Walt Tyler blanked the Treemen on two hits to record the Greyview win in the nightcap. Art Donati and Dave Krueger had the only Sohner hits.

Mound ace Chuck Tyson injured his arm while pitching in the second inning and shortstop Ron Blum reinjured his knee in the third inning. Both players were immediately removed from the game and will be lost to the Sohner club for an indefin- ite period.

Herb Dower tossed a four-hitter in recording Sohner's first-game win.

The Treemen scored twice in the third inning when Keith Fraser homered with one out and Dick Schultze singled to deep short and scored on Dower's long double to leftcenter.

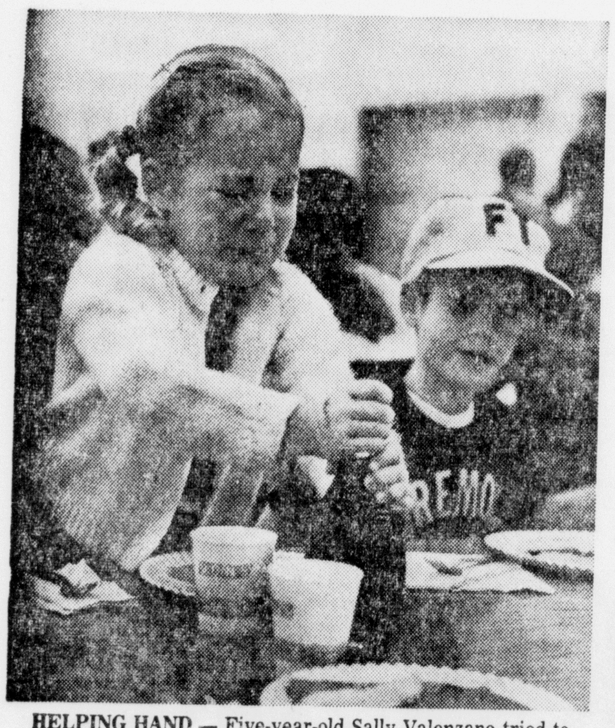
CROWDED PARADE — Players and their coaches paraded through the main streets of San Rafael on their way to Albert Field Saturday in the opening day ceremonies. It was the 20th year anniversary for San Rafael Little League.

A HEARTY BREAKFAST

It was opening day for San Rafael's Little Leaguers Saturday and they had a big day. It started with a breakfast of pancakes in the San Rafael High School cafeteria Saturday morning for both American and National leagues. Army Reservists from Santa Rosa did the cooking. The young man in the foreground was careful not to pour any of that syrup on his baseball glove.

(Independent-Journal photos by Alfred Aru)



HELPING HAND — Five-year-old Sally Valenzano tried to open a syrup bottle for big brother Roger at the Pancake breakfast but it proved too tight. Roger came to her rescue and finally got some syrup.

FUTURE STAR — Jason Klein, a young spectator at the parade, might be a little young for Little League at two years old, but his eyes seem to be looking into the future when he, too, can throw a baseball like all the "big guys."

STRIKING START — After all the opening day ceremonies were completed, members of the two leagues played an exhibition game and the season's first batter, Tom Timmer, struck out. But there will be many more chances for Tom to hit a home run. The catcher is Pete Kamler.
